So powerful is the light of unity that it can illuminate the whole earth.

- Baha'ullah

What is life without obstacles? Those day to day occurrences that put us to the test are the very foundation that we've built our lives upon. Yet through these trying circumstances often come our greatest successes. With the opening of a new school on the horizon, the student body approaches a crossroad. Now it is our responsibility to unite as proud Cavaliers and embrace the challenges that have been set before us.

experience

To accomplish great things, we must not only act, but also dream, not only plan, but also believe.

- Anatole France

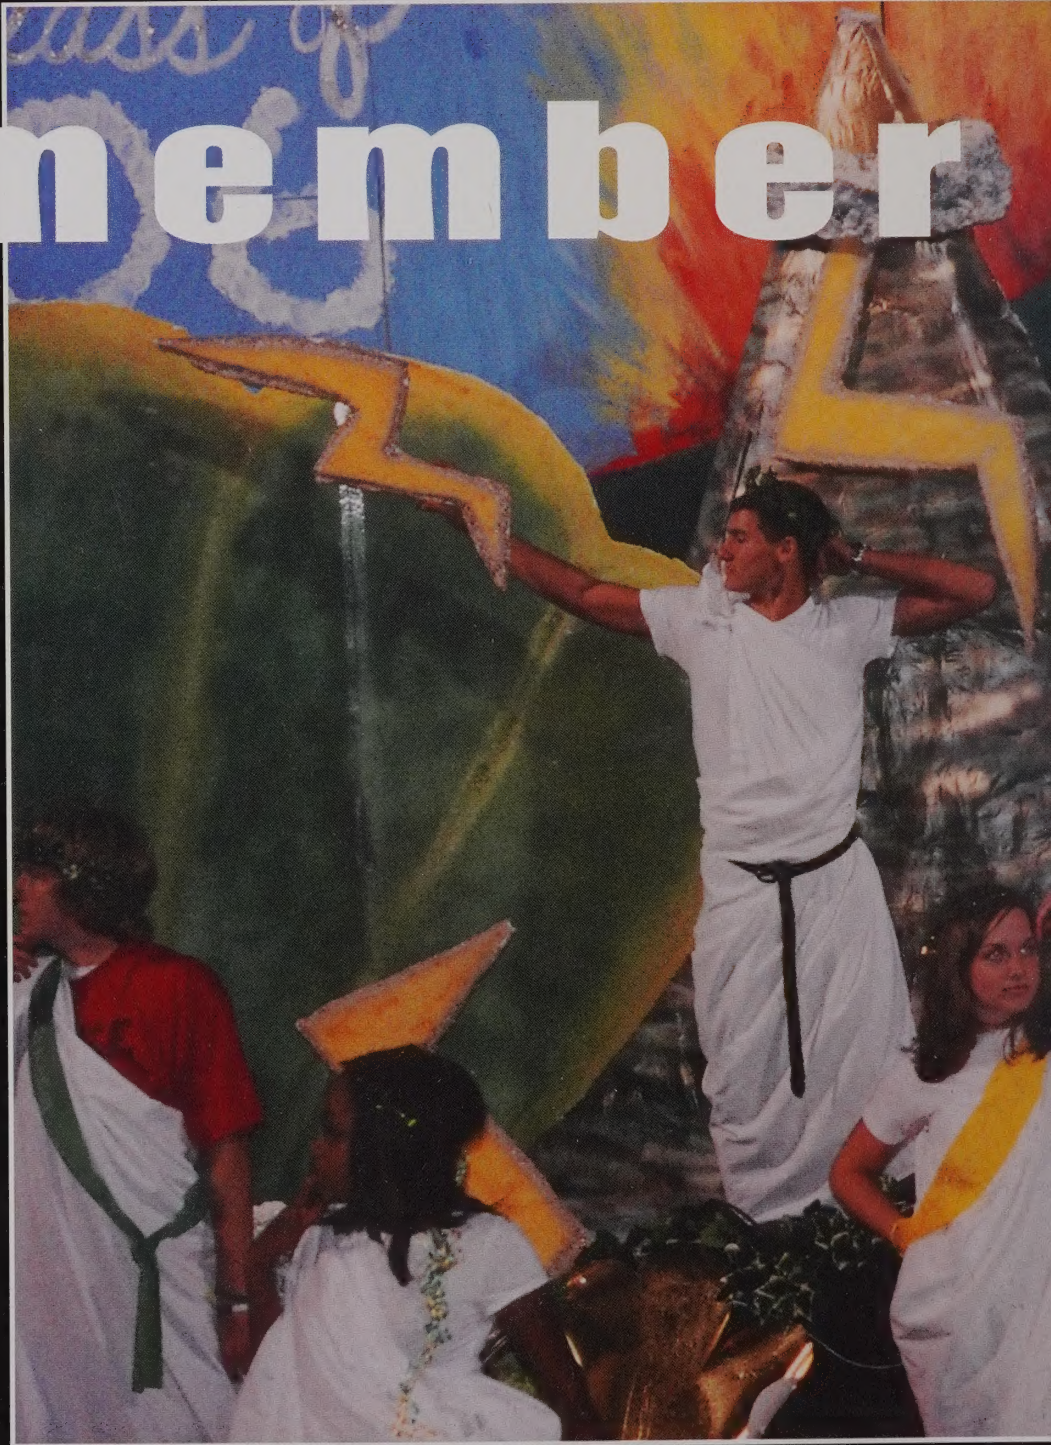

Why not take a chance? High school presents the opportunity to make life whatever you want it to be. It's your choice to experience life as a champion athlete, determined scholar or devoted fan. No matter what drives you or defines you, we all share a common trait. We all live as Cavaliers and wear our green and gold with pride. Each day we help create the definition of true Cavalier spirit.

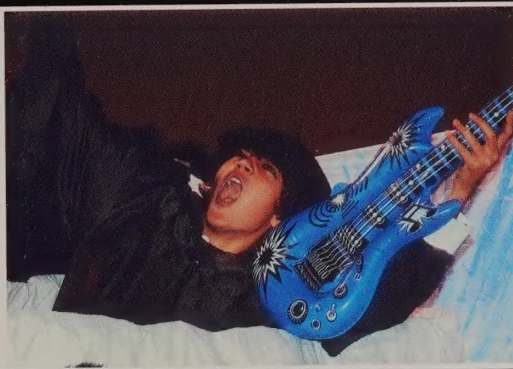

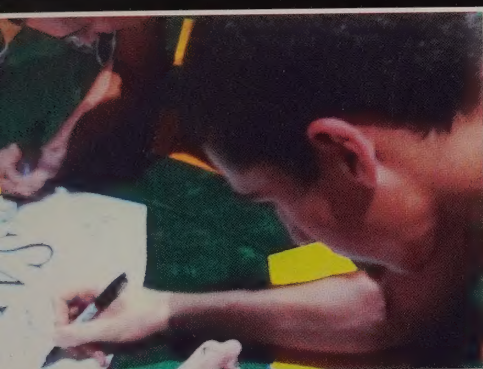

remember

*We all have our time machines.
Some take us back, they're called memories.
Some take us forward, they're called dreams.*

*- Jeremy

No matter how we think about it, change is inevitable. Whether it is entering a new school, working with a new coach or looking towards life after graduation, life is all about changes. Through these experiences, it is our prerogative to keep laughing through the tears and remember all that we have accomplished. So as we approach the many crossroads of our lives, we will take the road less traveled and it will make all the difference.

challenges

High school is a challenge. For freshmen, it's time to once again find your place and see how a new school fits into your life. Sophomores come back with more comfort but still yearn to be upperclassmen. Juniors are embarking on their crucial high school year that can make or break their future. For Seniors, they look back on their high school years with nostalgia, but still are aware of the difficult college decisions that lie before them. Despite these obstacles, high school is a time to venture into unknown territory and enjoy the journey.

hurricane devastation prompts schoolwide unity

On August 29th, 2005, Hurricane Katrina touched down in Louisiana and Mississippi. The disaster prompted a schoolwide effort, and the student body set a donation goal of $10,000. Several teachers and administrators made pledges to increase both student and staff participation. These pledges included having their face painted, dressing in gothic attire, giving up resigned parking spaces and performing a cheer in front of the student body. After two weeks of collecting donations, the goal was exceeded. Donations from the students, parents and faculty reached approximately $10,700. "We thought that the small hurricanes that left us without power for a few days were devastating. After Katrina, we don't know hardship," said Ms. Pat Brown. $7,700 was sent to the American Red Cross, $1,500 was sent to the Richmond Animal League, and $1,500 was sent to Angel Dogs. The checks made payable to the three organizations were presented at a Varsity football game, filling the fans in the stands with a sense of accomplishment.

"Clover Hill students did an excellent job of opening up their hearts to people and animals they didn't even know. They really upheld the true American values of helping those who need to be helped."

- Mr. Sid Ames

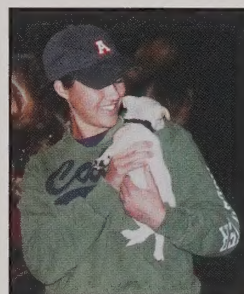

"To remove the makeup from my face I had to: wipe my face with a dry tissue for 5 minutes, wash my face for 2 minutes, apply a mud mask for 20 minutes, another 2 minute face wash, a 4 minute deep clean, a quick running break, and then one final rinse. Even after all that, my face was still a subtle shade of pink."

Juniors' rite of passage

The Junior Ring Ceremony gave students the first of many tokens of their high school careers. Although Juniors believed they were only receiving a ring, they were also given a memorable event and a keepsake of their high school years. Juniors ordered their rings at the end of their Sophomore year, but had to wait until they were upperclassmen to receive them. Dr. Marks told students about her own high school class ring and its continuing importance as a symbol of cherished memories. "The ceremony, in a way, symbolizes how far we have all come and how hard we have had to work to achieve what we have achieved," said Junior Richard Cunningham. The Junior Class Officers presented the rings to their classmates in front of an audience of their friends and family. The ceremony included a celebration with friends and family and the traditional turning of the rings. While the Ring Ceremony represented an important turning point as Juniors officially became upperclassmen, the rings also symbolized a lasting tribute to where they came from and hope for where they will go.

■ Lauren Hood and Brittany Gambardella successful season leads to states

Beginning in the summer, the golf team practiced daily to form a tight team bond. After the long practices, team members often went out to local restaurants, building and strengthening the team's unity. "I think this team was a lot closer than previous years which made this season a lot more fun and even more importantly, successful," said Junior James Jones. Due to the increased outings and strenuous practices, the golf team finished first in the Dominion District and second in the Central Region. In the State Championship tournament, the team competed and finished in third place. In addition, the golf team worked together to set a new school record at the Brandermill Country Club with a score of 142, 2 under par. "We proved a point this year; we meant business, and we were one of the best teams out there," said Senior Steven McDowell. Every player on the team was able to shoot par, allowing the team to progress throughout the season. The local newspaper, Richmond Times Dispatch, even picked up on the team's strength, as an entire left hand column in the sports section was dedicated to Chris Olson's impeccable golf skills. Everyone's outstanding skills and perseverance led the team to defend their district title and to make their name seen in the regional and state competition.

new motto reflects team unity

To symbolize strengthened team unity, the members of the Junior Varsity and Varsity Field Hockey teams initiated multiple changes. As a way of illustrating their team spirit, the girls wore newly innovative head bands on game days. "The bands help us to get pumped up for a game because they give us a sense of team unity. We remember that we win and lose as a team, and we are significantly unified when we wear our 'lucky' head bands," said Senior Christi Johnson. Also, with the addition of a new Junior Varsity coach, Rhonda Clopton, the players were able to expand their skills and form stronger friendships. "The season was distinctly more fun with the new changes and bonds that were made. Coach Clopton made all of the practices fun, yet at the same time hard so we'll learn something new or work on improving what we have learned," said Sophomore Megan Bulman. All the girls felt that the season was their best yet when it came to everyone feeling like they were part of the team. The Junior Varsity and Varsity Field Hockey teams were able to double or even triple the bonds that they had formed in previous years while welcoming the new players and coaches with open arms. Starting the season off with positive changes, the ladies ended with priceless memories.

How has the increased media coverage of the season's football games affected the team's performance on the field?

"As a team, we want each other to be the best, and being in the paper consistently is something I love because we get to talk about how good everyone else is. What I mean by that is I couldn't do it alone."

- Junior Julian Bowers

"It makes us feel more respected. We put a lot of hard work into football, and it's nice for people to notice us. But really it doesn't come down to how other people view you; what matters is how you view yourself and if you can be perfect in that moment."

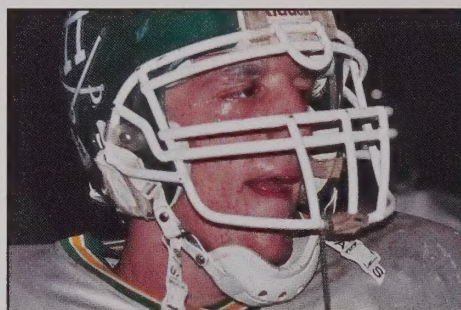

- Senior Jacob Robertson

Rain or shine, diehard fans found different ways to portray their excitement at every home game, whether it was through painted bodies, loud voices, or high hopes.

increased enthusiasm promotes persistent players

With an increase in media attention toward the Varsity football team came more public awareness as well as exercised team enthusiasm. As opposed to previous years, the Varsity players were highlighted almost weekly in issues of the Richmond Times Dispatch, illustrating both team and individual efforts. Each week, the team looked forward to reading about a previous game in order to pump them up for the next one. Their attention toward these articles had a noticeable effect on both their game playing strategies and their attitudes. "We've done some great things given all the attention. It has given us confidence and made everyone give us the respect we deserve. It has helped our playing a great deal, and I think this season can be classified as a success," said Senior Richie Hinson. As the year progressed, the players grew more and more hyped for each game, as their successes only continued to increase. "Every win throughout the season gave us more confidence to go out and do it again. We learned how to have fun and play the game at the same time," said Senior Leland Waight. As shown every fall Friday night under the lights, it was apparent that this publicity helped the team both on and off the field. Together, the boys finished the season with an 8-2 record, heightened enthusiasm, and undeniable memories.

Both the Freshmen and JV football teams strode proudly across the field for their first game. Eager to show off all their hard work and determination, the players competed with all they had and jumped into action. "I felt worried before a game, but once I hit the field the football player within came out," said Sophomore Steven Drake. With the record of 8 and 2, the JV boys tackled and scored their last winning touchdown of the season. Although the Freshman team did not complete their season with a win, they aimed to perform well in each game. "Playing for the Freshmen team was a learning experience that I will never forget," said Freshman Wolfgang Gohlke. Before every game the Freshmen and JV boys shared a meal of pizza and gatorade. While waiting in the cafeteria, the boys got into the zone by relaxing to their CD players. To pump themselves up before their games, the JV team forgot their worries by singing and grooving to the song "Apache" by The Sugar Hill Gang. This song helped the players get ready to go out and play their best. "After every game, about 20 of us who are really close go to eat at Wendy's. We aren't just a team; we are a family," said Sophomore Chase Cox. No matter the wins or losses, JV and Freshmen players worked toward their own personal and team goals.

spirit week brings out individual personalities

Hallways were filled with spirit on the morning of October 24th as many students took part in the most eventful week of the year, Spirit Week. Both students and faculty took on unique personalities in accordance to each day's theme. With Monday as Pajama Day, many students were allowed to simply roll out of bed. Because Tuesday was the night of the Powder Puff game, many Juniors and Seniors wore their jerseys while others sported clothing in dedication to their favorite sports team. Students and faculty rummaged through the back of their closets for acid washed jeans, leggings, and over-sized sweaters as Wednesday celebrated the fashions of the 80's. The newly introduced Cowboy vs. Pirate Day took place on Thursday, allowing students to wear creative costumes. "My favorite day was Cowboy Day because I like the country sense of style," said Senior Morgan Harney. Friday was the traditional Class Distinction Day, signified by painted faces, decorated shirts, or togas. Many took part in the diverse personalities that made the Spirit Week new and exciting.

rainy weather doesn't dampen powder puff spirit

In the midst of the most socially active week of school, Junior and Senior students took to the freshly groomed football stadium for the traditional Powder Puff football game. Provided by a rainy weekend, the soggy field proved to make the game conditions worse. The Senior ladies vigorously fought to the last seconds of the fourth quarter for their 27-21 win. "My favorite part of the game was playing defense at the very end - my heart was pounding in my ears because it was so close," said Senior Jessica Dodds. The Seniors have prevailed for the past five years proving experience is key, yet Juniors always put up a good fight. "It was nice to break out of my shell and show the Seniors what we were all about," said Junior Alexa Durnwirth. Cheerleaders had difficulties performing their stunts on the slippery track, yet even with the wet weather, they kept an optimistic point of view. "It was always exciting to see whether or not we caught the flyers," said Senior Mike Maguire. Despite the weather condition, this spirit week traditions continued to be a hit.

"Before the game no one really stretched or anything because we didn't know what to do, but after our first touchdown, everyone got really hyped. I thought that we might actually have a shot at winning the game."

- Junior
Grace Cuenin

"Our ladies wanted to win. At practice the first day, a bunch of crazy linebacker chicks came running at me and knocked me onto this poor little girl. The Seniors went at it hard and in the end, the juice was worth the squeeze."

- Senior Coach
Justin Tolley

1. Preparing to run the play, Senior Lauren Wells puts on her game face. "When we had to practice, inside things were a bit rocky, but we had an awesome scrimmage against our defense," said Wells. With rainy weather pushing practice inside, football players still brought their best game to the field.

2. Reaching out to steal a Junior running back's flags, Senior Caitlin Schrider takes hold of the lead for Senior defense.

3. Setting up a pass down field, Junior Lee Coleman is joined by teammate Bridget Fitzgerald as they strive to score a touchdown.

Q What was your favorite moment from the Powder Puff Football game?

"When I was running down the field with the ball I knew we all wanted to win. I think we definitely had the Seniors scared."
- Junior
Liz Smith

"It was so awesome running into the endzone then being attacked by all the girls. It was such a rush."
- Senior
Beth Allen

"Cheerleading was so much fun with all the other guys. I wasn't embarrassed at all, even wearing spandex."
- Junior
Adam Blake

"Our coach told us to get our game faces on. His strategy for us was to strike 'em down, rip out their mouth piece and save it as a souvenir."

the class of 2006 reclaims the spirit stick

As the students filed into the stadium, they were overcome with class pride. Each class wore distinguishing attire. The freshmen wore white, sophomores wore green, juniors wore black, and the seniors wore the traditional toga. Performances by the JV and Varsity cheerleaders, marching band, Acropolis, and the Cavalettes brought everyone to their feet. After four years of waiting, the class of 2006 finally got their chance to grasp the coveted spirit stick. "I was really excited, but a little nervous before they announced the winners," said Senior Hannah Thorton. The Senior Class also received first place for their ancient Greek-themed hallway. The Juniors came in second in the hallway competition for their festive Irish-themed hallway. "I feel that it was the right decision; the Seniors really worked hard," said Junior Kevin Kennedy. A sense of class pride overcame the seniors, and at the end of the Pep Rally, the football field was filled with jumping, screaming members of the class of 2006.

"Performing was really fun and I got really pumped up because everyone was cheering for us."

- Sophomore
Brenna Campbell

How would you describe your experience of being on the 2005 Homecoming Court?

"It was really nerve-racking to walk down the track. I'd never had so many people clap for me."
- Freshman
Tori McKissick

"I got the chance to meet a lot of new Seniors."
- Sophomore
Grayson Tucker

"It was an honor knowing that I was the mold that all the Juniors were made out of."
- Junior
Lucas Fritz

"It wasn't fun missing part of the dance to sit in a room with all of the other members of the homecoming court."
- Senior
Jeremy Soles

1. The seniors rejoice after their first place victory in the spirit stick competition. "I really enjoyed the pep rally because I was able to be really loud and get everyone involved," said Senior Brian Seal. The class of 2006 rushed the field in their excitement over their win.

2. Cars in the Senior parking lot display Junior Class pride in the form of white window paint.

3. Junior Jacob Robertson holds a sign representing the Senior class of 2006.

raising the bar on and off the field

The lights were bright, the stands were full, it was 6:15 and the show had just begun. As the floats proceeded down the track, the crowd cheered and applauded. With a theme of Around the World, all the floats represented the many different countries from all over the world. When all was said and done, the Junior Class's "Cavalier Manor" and S.A.D.D.'s "Don't Spill Your Blood This Homecoming" won as best floats. "The float was a lot of hard work, but it was nice to be able to hang out with my friends while working on it, and it all paid off in the end when we took first place," said Junior Kaila Alsip. The glitzy convertibles carried the Homecoming Court towards the crowd, including Senior Jaimie Eissler, who was crowned queen later that night. In addition to the class and club festivities, the football team also performed beyond expectations. With a score of 62 to 12, the Varsity boys achieved the honor of most points scored in a single game since 1977. By the end of the night both the Junior Class and the Varsity players had set the bar high for future Homecomings.

■ Amber DeAngelo and Meredith Carpenter

"Working on the float was so much fun and we all bonded; the work was worth it."

- Sophomore
Kate Gibbs

"Getting dressed up as a mummy, freezing in the cold, and standing in front of all the school on a float; now that's what I call an awesome first Homecoming!"

- Freshman
Alex Paulini

1. The fans show their support for the football team by pointing and cheering at the kick-off of the game. "My first Homecoming was fun standing in the crowd in 30 degree weather with all my friends," said Freshman Todd Hardwick. The fans added to the excitement of the game when they participated in the custom of willing the ball in the opposite direction.

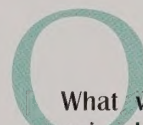

2. Juniors Kalia Alsip, Logan Moore, and Molly Spraker do a jig for their successful Irish float.

3. Senior Brandon Jones dances to the beat of S.A.D.D.'s winning Homecoming float.

What was the most enjoyable part of the Homecoming Game and festivities?

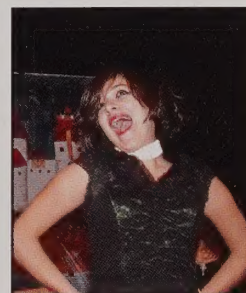

"Being on the float and dressing up for the game was a great way to cap off my Senior year"

- Senior
Ben McMillan

"Being able to ride in Dr. Booth's sweet corvette was really cool. I was so cold, but it was worth every minute."

- Senior
Lauren Wells

"It was a lot of work directing the S.A.D.D. float, but it paid off when we won!"

- Junior
Marinia Lupini

"The game was the best part of the whole night. Beating George Wythe with the amount of points we did was awesome."

colorful decorations establish a magical mood

As students entered into the school, they were overwhelmed with the sights and sounds of an Arabian night. Carpets lined the hallways and drapes hung from the ceiling, creating an atmosphere of magic and mystery. "I thought the school was very well prepared for the dance. The decorations were vivid and exciting," said Junior Ian Stowe. Brightly colored balloons, floating inside the commons, also helped to enhance the mood. Inside the gymnasium, students danced to a variety of music, ranging from hip-hop to techno. "Homecoming was an awesome experience. The excitement of the dance was made even better by the amazing DJ," said Sophomore Patricia Mahan. Meanwhile, in the commons, students were treated to refreshments under a brightly lit canopy. The night's pinnacle arrived with the crowning of the Homecoming King, Joel Simpson and Homecoming Queen, Jaimie Eissler. As the dance came to an end, students exited the fictional world with a multitude of memories.

"I really enjoyed being chosen princess for the Sophomore class. I didn't expect to be named princess, and when I heard my name on the announcements, I was shocked."

- Sophomore
Ryan Crawford

"I will never forget Homecoming night, walking down the center of the dance floor. The best part was seeing all my classmates and friends lined up around me. Everyone was so gorgeous and handsome. I really felt like a princess!"

- Freshman
Tori McKissick

How long did it take you to get ready for the dance? What all did you have to do?

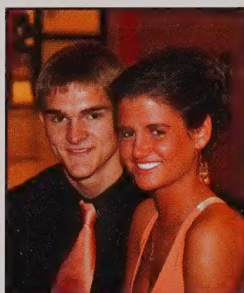

"My decision to go to the dance was pretty last minute. I threw on some makeup, borrowed a dress, and had a great time."
- Senior
Kelsey Champion

"Getting ready for homecoming didn't take that long. My sister threw my hair up any way she could."
- Junior
Jennifer Voreh

"It took me about an hour to get ready. All I had to do was get my hair done and put on some makeup."
- Freshman
Katie Lemza

"Getting ready for the dance is really no big deal. It is funny when the girls are freaking out with an hour left to prepare."
- Junior

1. Juniors Tatum Deming, Ian Stowe, Grace Cuenin, and Lucas Fritz walk through a mix of friends and classmates. "I was surprised and honored to be picked by my peers, but it was a great experience," said Deming. The princes and princesses proudly represented the Junior class.

2. Senior Molly Mahoney decorates the commons by painting a desert mural before the dance.

3. Senior Margaret Cotter, Historian of the Student Council Association, dedicates her Saturday morning and afternoon to setting up for the dance.

"I really liked the theme of the Homecoming Dance. Walking in, the decorations looked fantastic. I had a sweet time, and it will be a great memory to look back upon."

- Sophomore
Luke Atwood

"Before going to the dance, my friends and I went to Kabuto's for dinner. During the meal, the chef tossed shrimp at us as part of his cooking routine. It was really funny seeing everyone all dressed up trying to catch food in their mouths."

What are you feeling before performing in front of hundreds of people?

"There is nothing quite like the feeling right before a performance. The emotions you get when you step onto the field make you realize it's what you've been working for all year."

-Junior Wes Owens

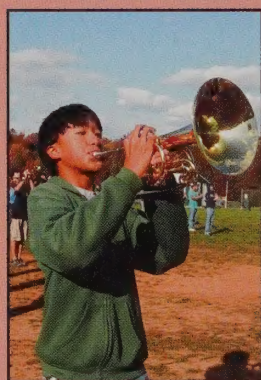

"Before performing, I just try to shut out the pressure. I am mainly thinking about how cold it is."

- Senior David Pope

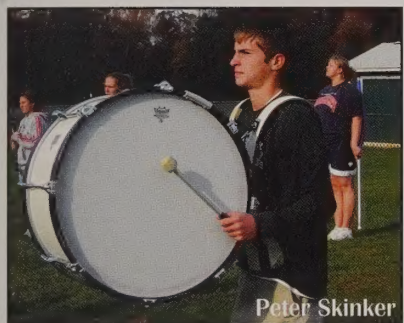

Performing with fellow band members, Sophomore Nathan Malone focuses on staying in sync with the rest of the band. The marching band plays a variety of songs including "Get Away/ September" by Earth, Wind, and Fire and "I Like The Way You Move" by Outkast.

Over the summer, the marching band began rigorous rehearsals, practicing not only for performances at football games but also for a spring trip to Ireland. Faced with the absence of their director, Mr. Conley, the marching band was required to compensate with small changes in their structured routine. "When you think of the band, you think of Mr. Conley. It seemed to me as if there was something missing without him," said Senior Matt Cherneski. Stepping in for Mr. Conley, Mr. Wray, assistant band director, acquired the responsibility of organizing rehearsals and perfecting routines. Drum majors Senior Katie Puckett and Juniors Kiran Kumar and Wes Owens were also required to increase their responsibilities as leaders of the band. "During Mr. Conley's absence we were required to make sure his rules were still enforced. Commanding the same amount of respect that he does when he is not there is especially difficult," said Junior Kiran Kumar. In addition, the marching band no longer performed at away football games, instead focusing on entertaining the crowd at home. Even with such changes, the marching band continued to work diligently and were rewarded with an Excellent ranking at the Virginia Band and Orchestra Directors' Association.

■ Katie Peng, Katherine Orth, and Amy George

"This has been the single greatest experience. The bonds that are forged between the band have compelled me to continue marching."

new wardrobe jazzes up half time

With the start of the new season, the girls received a brand new set of uniforms and flags. The new uniforms featured black and gold velvet, while the half time show was highlighted with shades of blue and white flags. "I think the new uniforms and flags are pretty and give us a good presence on the field," said Sophomore Kristen Neisz. The girls worked hard every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday to get their routine synchronized. To get pumped up before the show, the girls handed out spirit bags to each other which they called "guard bags." In October, the team earned a Superior rating at the annual VBODA competition. Also, they had the privilege of attending the Hanover High School competition. The girls received encouraging remarks from the judges who placed them in second. The squad was eager to show off their colors on the spring trip to Ireland as well. They were specifically invited by the mayor of Dublin to perform in the Saint Patrick's Day parade. "I was so excited about going, because we got to travel around the world," said Senior Teri Dulong-Rae. The excitement of receiving brand new outfits brought the team together and inspired the girls to work even harder on their performances. At the conclusion of their season, the team was able to look back on their awards and be proud of what they accomplished.

day in the life -freshmen

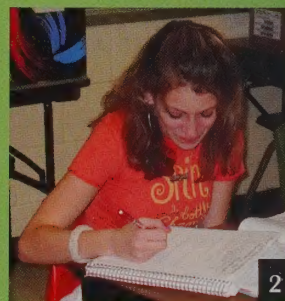

Above: Socializing at lunch, the Freshmen table buzzes with gossip and talk of weekend plans. "Lunch is a great part of the day because you can talk about your problems out and teachers can't tell you to stop; it is a glorious time for chatterboxes," said Freshman Abby Garey. Using their time wisely, freshmen took advantage of being able to socialize with one another over a sandwich.

Wandering through hallways, gripping the school map tightly, freshmen faces attempted to scoot through the door of class before the dreaded late bell rang. Just another day in the life of a freshman. Even though it may have taken them a few weeks to get in the swing of things, many freshmen said that the environment was more enjoyable than their previous middle school. "The students, especially upper-classmen, were so spirited and take the silliness of Spirit Week very seriously. Everyone was so excited and enthusiastic at the Pep Rally," said Freshman Ashley Bracey. The freshman curriculum posed some new challenges that strengthened skills in core classes. "The high school teachers challenge me more; they do not explain everything completely and sometimes just expect you to figure it out," said Freshman Hanting Feng. With a better feel for the building's endless hallways and secret staircases, freshmen paced themselves in the race against the bell, and life.

Freshmen's To-Do List

- first high school football game
- elect class officers
- get used to block scheduling
- join clubs to put on college resume
- participate in first Spirit Week
- school-wide pep rally
- homecoming parade, game, and dance
- history field trip to Washington D.C.
- semester exams
- attend plays and concerts
- schedule sophomore year classes to decide college major
- study to get learner's permit

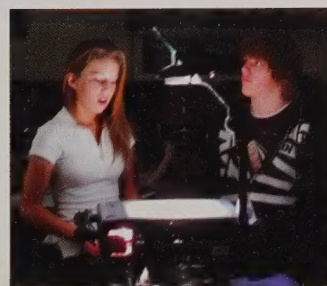

Below: Sharing a book, Freshmen Megan Nantz and Keran Cleary read over a passage together. "The first week of school was a challenge because I was not aware of my teachers' expectations; my friends and I stuck together and talked a lot on the phone to help each other through it," said Cleary. Strength in numbers proved that this new chapter in life may be difficult, but it can also be a rewarding experience.

"Floor Hockey was definitely one of my favorite sports from gym class. Our games were so intense; in one game, the puck hit some girl in the nose and she had to go to the clinic."
-Freshman Baily Haynes

"Mr. Anderson runs a pretty swell English class. His teaching is understandable but he pushes us to find a deeper meaning and look further than the material's surface."
-Freshman Dane Winborne

the cosby show

The Clover Hill community prepared to be separated with the building of a new high school. With a new facility and a new student body, both students and faculty looked forward to a new opportunity. Cosby High School was set to enroll students from the Clover Hill, Matoaca, and Manchester Districts. Many underclassmen were forced to leave behind some of their friends and their high school foundation; however, they were eager to have a new beginning.

Progress on the new school was monitored by local residents and businesses, for they were all waiting in anticipation for the opening of a new school. "A new school is welcomed because it helps us see what our strengths are, and it sharpens our skills," said Mrs. Gail Kline. Faculty, parents, and students are excited to see the expected improvements.

stuck on you

Somehow they always find each other; it might be through a class, a sport, an after school club, or just a night out on the town. Best friends stand the test of time. Many students have friends from back in the days of Clover Hill, Woolridge, and Grange Hall Elementary Schools. Some of them have known each other since birth, and some became awesome duos in high school. With so many new beginnings approaching, going to different high schools or going to college, new adventures awaited to test the strong bonds between them. "Because we have been friends for such a long time, even if we go to different colleges, we will be able to remain close," said Senior Matt Risendal. Just like your favorite pair of shoes, one just wouldn't be the same without the other.

"I spend 40 bucks every week on gas! It's ridiculous!"

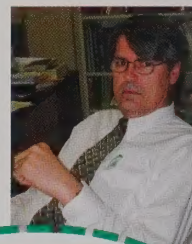

- Senior Michelle Han

"We each have an SUV, so we carpool to save money."

- Senior Esther Kang

During the fall, gas prices hit record highs. Due to summer travel and damage to the oil industry from Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, gas prices broke $3 per gallon. Following this extreme, prices were on a roller coaster, plummeting to $2 per gallon, which was relatively cheap by then and would then soar straight back toward $3 per gallon. This inflation of prices affected everyone, businesses and students alike. People everywhere had to make sacrifices, such as putting in for more hours at work instead of going out with friends.

"I still remember when gas was 25 cents!"

blast from the past

Many students don't know that the temporary walls upstairs, and in some classes downstairs, were not there when the school opened in 1971. It used to be that students could literally be in two classes at once, which became very distracting for both students and teachers.

The 1982 women's gymnastics team came back from a year of absence claiming the district champion title. They suffered only one loss which allowed them a spot at regionals, where they placed second.

The first women's state champion title in any sport was won by the 1994 women's tennis team. The team worked together, losing only two matches in regular season play and one at regionals. Their win over Godwin gave them the motivation and will to win.

One day in 1995, there were eight cafeteria workers absent and they were in need of some extra help. Mr. Salmon, along with former assistant principal Thornton Carter, helped out by making fries and sandwiches for the students.

Along with the annual Homecoming activities, the students used to get together and have bonfires. The bonfires were usually on the Wednesday before Homecoming, and there was always a visit from the, then famous, "Phantom of the Bonfire."

boys to men

As the high school years fly by, teenage boys mature into men. When it comes to entertainment, both students and faculty enjoy watching Sports Center. Boys also like to watch hip shows like House and 24. On the other hand, male teachers preferred more educational programs such as The Apprentice and Law and Order. Characteristics valued in women differed between male students to the male teachers. The boys were more interested in physical appearance: smile, body type, and personality. However, teachers preferred a relationship based more on personal connections and humor. Male teachers also had nostalgia from their youth, recognizing that it does not last forever.

chances

Now is the time to take that chance, that leap into your new world. Have the will to find your passion and take the initiative to set your goals. Search for your personal place in the spotlight, whether it be on the field, in the classroom, or as part of a club. There is no right path to follow but merely the responsibility of paving your own way. Do not fear adversity because taking these risks may lead to discoveries about your true identity. High school is a time to take chances and make a few mistakes while learning and creating memories along the way.

seniors encourage success in all members

With the arrival of spring, both the men and womens' track and field teams began training for their upcoming meets. For the first two weeks of practice, Coaches Wahrman and Brown organized demanding exercises to get the members back into shape. Guided by the leadership of additional seniors, the teams responded to the pressure by working diligently to meet the coaches' high expectations. In addition to an increased number of senior members, the team also established the tradition of awarding a "game ball." After each meet, the coaches presented one member of the womens' team and one member of the mens' team with a certificate and bag of candy based on his or her superior performance at the meet. "This year at track we started the 'Game Ball.' It was exciting receiving it because it represented a congratulations on your achievements. It was a good addition to our team," said Freshman Jenna Moye. With the increased motivation of coaches and seniors, both the mens' and womens' teams went on to place well in both Districts and Regionals. Freshman Jenna Moye and Juniors Lekeisha White, Blake DeChristopher, and Jeremy Zdanek all advanced to the state level of competition based on their performance in the 3200 meter run, 300 meter hurdles, and shot put.

team spirit triumphs over obstacles

With many injured teammates and a new staff of coaches, returning runners joined together to break through these roadblocks. In Coach Averill's absence, Coach Mehrer and Coach Wahrman stepped up in an attempt to fill his shoes. Despite a change in coaches, the qualities of running still kept team members motivated. "The best part about cross-country is the freedom it gives you," said Senior Andy Taylor. Even though the number of injured members grew throughout the season, the team continued to have their runners place in the top ten at meets. "I didn't get to run much this season due to hurting my knee early on in an ATV accident; even though I was not running with everyone, I felt that I did my team justice being an enthused Cavalier fan," said Senior Mallory Moore. The runners also attended pasta parties the night before each meet to pump each other up. Runners rotated the location of the parties from one house to another. The only obligation for attending was that everyone had to bring a dish to share with the team. "The friendships I have made are what brings me back every year; if it weren't for the fun times and hilarious moments at our pasta parties, I don't know if I could endure running three or more miles everyday for weeks on end," said Senior Kelsey Haynes. Under the guidance of new coaches, cross country runners kept each other pumped on and off the field.

lookin' good

breaking tradition sets higher standards

Beginning the season with brand new uniforms, both the Junior Varsity and Varsity Men's Volleyball teams were inspired to play as well as they looked. Instead of wearing the traditional white tank tops and black shorts, kelly green jerseys with matching gold shorts lit up the court. "The new uniforms brought attention to our team, pressuring us to live up to the expectations in the past," said Junior Keith O'Donnell. Not wearing the traditional uniforms have not kept the varsity boys from having an undefeated season. Along with the yearly title of District Champions since 1993, the boys defeated Thomas Dale in the Regional finals, clenching the title of Regional Champions. "All we needed to do was just work to do our best in practice and games. If we did that, we would have the talent to beat anyone," said Senior Zach Baker. With that in mind, the boys pushed until the end. With a dominant beginning of a close four game match, the boys managed to defeat Thomas Dale for the third time this season, bringing home the State title. In addition, Senior Craig Cruise was awarded State Player of the Year, and in his last year of coaching, Steve Eliasek was announced Virginia State Coach of the Year. Although the team wore new uniforms, the boys kept certain traditions, such as their claim to an undefeated season. With much determination and dedication, the boys conquered the state title for the first time since 2001.

fight for districts leads to regionals

Over Labor Day weekend, the girls' team placed second in the American Division at the Ukrop's Volleyball Showcase Tournament. "My favorite part of the year was the pre-season tournament because it was the first time we really showed people what we could do, and we were able to prove that by finishing second in our division," said Senior Kate McGowan. After tying for first in the district, the ladies had to defeat Midlothian in order to win first place in the Districts. In a 3 to 1 victory, the girls overcame that obstacle and were crowned as District Champions. Winning the District Championships led to the participation in the Regional tournament where they advanced all the way to the semi-finals. Aiding in the team's victories were five sets of twins. This unique circumstance caught the eye of a local Virginia newspaper, The Richmond Times Dispatch. The front page Sports story displayed a photo of the twins, along with an article describing the team's dominance. Many of the twins were interviewed by the press, including the Lockie sisters who expressed their excitement of being on the Varsity team as well as being able to share the spotlight with their oldest sister, Senior Captain Kenzie Lockie. Concluding the season with an 11-1 District record, the girls made it the most successful season in seven years.

gotta gotta cut loose- Footloose!

underclassmen are taught new traditions

Yes, it was true; the big split was definitely on everyone's mind. This was the last year the drama department included all of the Sophomores and Freshmen before they were "cut loose" to attend Cosby High School. As the Seniors and Juniors came to this realization, they started to pass down their traditions, games, inside jokes, and secrets to putting on an amazing production. It was evident that Footloose was a group effort. From the stage managers, Seniors Lindsey North and Chris Nicosia, to the Director, Ginger Gobble, everyone played a role. "Every day we became closer. At first staying around until five was a big inconvenience, but then we didn't want to go home," said Sophomore Kitty Cox. Those involved in the production even organized a "Secret Pal" gift exchange where gifts as bizarre as hamsters were given before each show. After the final show, tears were shed when the drama kids realized that it was the end of the intense experience. The energy infused into this modern musical left audiences in awe and cast and crew crying for more.

2. The crew from stage left is thrilled after a successful first act.

3. Lyle, played by Junior Lucas Fritz, participates in a game of craps on the set of Footloose.

changes lead to increased spirits

Through both the intermingling of basketball and football cheerleaders, as well as the increased enthusiasm of the football teams, a rise in the spirits of Junior Varsity and Varsity cheerleaders was inevitable. Unlike previous years, basketball cheerleaders were used as substitute football cheerleaders if one was unable to attend a game. This allowed girls to create friendships as well as a great deal of unity, not necessarily as a team, but as cheerleaders as a whole. "Because there is more interaction with the basketball cheerleaders, we have been able to stay more unified. The increased interaction allowed us to all know each other much better and become not only a team, but a family," said Freshman Caitlin Rotchford. In addition, as football players became more excited about playing in games, cheerleaders became more excited to cheer for them. "The football players' energy makes us so much more pumped. They are all so great and work together as a team so well that it encourages us to act in similar ways." said Sophomore Abbey Lupien. Through both the smiles on their faces and the loudness of their cheers, it was apparent that the eagerness of the football players had a positive effect on both cheerleading squads. These variations aided cheerleaders in a more energetic and successful season.

Although tryouts did not take place the year prior as they traditionally had, Mrs. Brashears and returning members pushed for the creation of a team. Together, they persevered and acquired interest from others to join. For the first time, practices were held for several weeks before tryouts in order to prepare new steppers. "It was crazy this year - I loved teaching people though, and watching them get better," said Senior Nora Chatmon. The ability to teach new members allowed a sense of unity from the very beginning. However, as the year continued, other commitments took priority, leaving the team with only six members. Such a small number, on the other hand, allowed the team to form closer bonds and relationships. "I've really grown to love these people that I've met, and I'm so glad that I have them as my friends," said Freshman Madeleine Mullins. Being on a step team required everyone to be in sync and having such a close-knit group made this a reality. Together, the six girls choreographed and rehearsed their own original routines. All of their hard work paid off when the step team showed off their skills at home basketball games. This core group remained dedicated and, in the face of adversity, established a unique and successful team.

innovative dances create new variety

During half time at each home football game, the Cavalettes took center stage to ignite energy amongst the crowd. The team of twelve girls performed a different dance before each game and during half time. The two captains, Kori Hundley and Kelley Simpson, along with input from the rest of the team, designed a new dance to teach to the girls each week. This variety created new excitement for the crowd and a new direction for the team. "The new dances made every game different and exciting. People always had something new to look at," said Sophomore Lindsey Harney. Although the girls had to work hard at each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon practice to perfect their new routines, their perserverance and dedication proved successful. "Sometimes, it created stress to try to clean up both the dance for before the game and the dance for halftime in time for each game, but by coming early to the games, we were able to come together for each performance," said Junior Meg Lawman. The Cavalettes later had the opportunity to be involved in a Clover Hill Live skit by performing on stage with cast members. The team worked hard this season to take their performances to a new level with unique dances and different themes.

harder practices promote perfection

As a way of increasing the abilities of individual players and the teams as a whole, new practice strategies were taken into play for both the Varsity and Junior Varsity basketball teams. As opposed to previous years, practices were much more intense and demanding. The teams were expected to attend each practice with the same mindset as if they were playing in a game. Encouragement was necessary as long workouts proved strenuous. "We expect to win and demand perfection every time we step onto a court, whether it is in our driveway, at practice, or during a game," said Sophomore Luke Atwood. JV and Varsity practices were also more drill-based. This approach assisted the teams in advancing their basic skills, thus improving game play. "Coach Carr worked us hard on the smaller things in practice so that we were better prepared and more focused when game day rolled around," said Senior Marc Aiello. Some new techniques introduced were methods such as placing a smaller basket inside the normal one so that players had a smaller shooting range, as well as increasing the amount of running and conditioning at practices. The JV team finished the season with a 5-14 record and the Varsity team finished with a record of 14-5 and a trip to the Regional Tournament, proving that fundamentals are, in fact, the building blocks of success.

new teammates encourage acceptance

As illustrated by the Junior Varsity and Varsity basketball teams, it is apparent that team bonding leads to team acceptance. Unlike before, many new players were added to both teams, creating an innovative start to the season. All teammates, both new and old, were forced to learn both the talents and weaknesses of one another and utilize them to the best of their abilities. "This season, I felt even more responsibility to keep the chemistry of the team balanced and the girls' attitudes positive, especially when our team was made up of predominantly new players," said Senior Kelsey Haynes, Co-Captain of the Varsity team. Both new and returning players used their differences to spark friendships and improve their skills by observing others. "Because we had a lot of new players, it was difficult at first to get used to our differences, but in the end, we improved because we learned each other's playing styles and how to work well together," said Sophomore Kelly McDowell. Despite the fact that this was a rebuilding year for both teams, success was obviously not out of reach. Obstacles did not prevent the Varsity team from making it all the way to the Regional Tournament for the first time since 1996. They finished with a 12-10 record while the Junior Varsity team only lost to four teams in the district throughout the entire season.

improvement shown through facing obstacles

Without the use of an indoor track facility, the boys and girls indoor track teams conducted all their practices outside. In the beginning of the season numerous new members of the track teams were skeptical about how their fellow teammates would perform with the lack of an indoor track facility. However, with the experience of practicing outside through the cold days and harsh winds, the team members obtained a stronger endurance and a more fierce attitude. "Practicing all those days outside helped to prepare us better for our meets indoors," said Junior Chris Higby. Many might have thought not having an indoor track would be a set back for both teams; however, the girls and boys pulled through with great agility and proved them wrong. Distance runners who trained on and off the track also had a hard winter with practicing outdoors. Even with the obstacles they all faced they were able to make their team better as a whole and reach their goals for the season. "Even though we all had to bundle up for practice, the team stuck together to endure the cold weather; laughing and playing around was a good way to keep warm at times," said Senior Maggie Dupler. Both the boys and girls track teams overcame the disadvantage of not having a facility and became stronger as a team.

wrestling claims second place in district

The long hours of practice paid off when Varsity wrestlers rose to the top of the Dominion District, claiming second place. Without the off-season conditioning in which many wrestlers participated, they would not have had the stamina for the many matches they wrestled and won in order to land a top place in the district. "I did a lot of conditioning, and it really helped me do better during wrestling season. Even though it was well worth it, sometimes I just wished that I could eat pizza," said Freshman Harrison Oldaker. Hardworking and dedicated, both Junior Varsity and Varsity wrestlers endured several matches to defeat nearly every team in the District. "We lost a lot of veterans, but we still had enough talent to fill the gaps," said Senior Justin Cruise. Several of the wrestlers won the district title for their individual weight class. Even injuries couldn't stop the team's will to win. "I still wrestled at Districts, even though I had a serious concussion," said Senior Drew Davis. Each District winner then went on to wrestle at Regionals. Senior Jim Brown set three new school records for wins, pins, and points. Even though the team fell short of defending their reign as District Champions, the disappointment was far outweighed by the pride they had taken in their record.

With the trip to London out of the question due to the war on terror, the band department opted for a more Celtic themed trip: a journey to Ireland. The Cavaliers departed for Ireland on Saturday, March 11th after weeks of after school practices. On Friday, March 17th, the Cavaliers marched in the St. Patrick's Day Parade through the streets of Dublin, Ireland. "All the people's cheering faces created so much energy in the streets of Dublin. Representing the school of Clover Hill was such a hit with the Irish culture. Being in the parade was such a rush," said Sophomore Katherine Marek. Even though Mr. Conley was out of teaching commission due to an injury, he attended every practice to prepare for Ireland. His substitute, Mr. Wray, kept band classes busy and students working hard on their music. "Even though Mr. Conley's leg was probably killing him, he showed up at every practice. He proved his dedication, and his loyalty to the group was greatly appreciated," said Junior Wes Owens. Overcoming numerous obstacles, the band appreciated the celebration of a Celtic holiday.

A melody of angelic harp strings floods the commons' adjoining corridors as orchestra class begins. Diversity not only came with the students but was also present in the types of instruments included in orchestral productions. The Concert Orchestra's fifty-five members were accompanied by a harp duo composed of Sophomore Kate Gibbs and Freshman Owen Wingo. "The harp helps me let loose and can present scholarship opportunities in my future," said Wingo. With only a few freshmen enrolled in the Intermediate Orchestra class, filling the needed instrumental parts became an issue. Reaching above and beyond, violists took the place of second violins. These students learned to read treble clef music, as opposed to a viola's alto clef and proved their dedication to the music. The intensity of Chamber Orchestra's music level was proven by their feature piece: a four violin solo concerto. The Intermediate, Concert, and Chamber Orchestras all received superior ratings at District III Festival. With a successful season under their belts and continuing enrollment, the orchestra classes' variety of students was reflected in their instrumental achievements.

Theater classes allowed students an outlet for their creative energy. Although the classes were offered on many different levels, each class gave students from various grades a chance to interact with each other and share their spontaneity and enthusiasm. Forensics also gave advanced students a chance to use their acting talents in competitions. The team competed in various competitions at different high schools around the state. Theater gave students a chance to utilize self expression and to discover their dramatic talent.

With many after school and weekend practices, the groups learned choreography and a magnitude of songs to perform at their Winter Concert, Pyramid Concert, Spring Concert, and various show choir competitions. "Show choir is definitely a lot of work, but it has paid off for us. All of the extra time that we have put in has paid off in the end," said Senior Shannon Kessler. Iridescence, the all female show choir, and New Dimensions, the mixed show choir, took their shows on the road to New York City to compete at a competition. They also had the opportunity to admire professionals at a Broadway show. The intensity of all the groups allowed all members to bond as they worked toward the same goal: a great show.

"The second year of the Advanced Placement Art program has enhanced students' work," said art teacher Donna Stables. Students have a variety of classes to choose from within the art program, which include three Advanced Placement classes. The AP art classes offered include AP 2-D Design, AP 3-D Design and AP Computer Graphics. The AP classes allowed students to further develop their skills and build a portfolio, essential for college admission to art programs. "AP art has allowed me to develop my portfolio, helping me to pursue art at Virginia Commonwealth University," said Senior Betsy Kurz. Students had more freedom in the AP art classes to develop their portfolio with their own style. In addition to the AP classes, Art Exploration, Crafts and Photography are offered. While these classes are priorities for creative students, the traditional art classes remain favorites for a variety of artists.

In AP, I chose my favorite artist, Chuck Close, to reflect my passion for portraiture with abstract tone," says Celuck. With the addition of a new wing to the Chesterfield Technical Center, many of the students that attended took advantage of what it had to offer. Some of the changes included new projector systems, new classrooms, computer labs, and a new cafeteria. Before the addition, classes ate separately in their classrooms. With the cafeteria addition, lunchtime consisted of four lunches with mixed classes, which gave students an opportunity to meet new people. Another great advantage of the added included the new courses available. Classes such as biotechnology used the updated facilities and technology of the new wing to enhance the studies and experiences of their students. "The new software and hardware provided by the wing has made my learning experience easier and more fun," said Senior Jasmine Reeder. The long awaited wing allowed the Tech Center to open the door to new opportunities.

Returning after their first year of high school, Sophomores had many endeavors and transitions to look forward to. Whether they were taking Behind the Wheel in preparation of receiving their driver's license or choosing which color stone to order for their class ring, Sophomores constantly took advantage of opportunities to prepare for their future years of high school. "It's nice not to be the youngest anymore; I feel like we've matured a lot," said Sophomore Morgan Hanley. The Class of 2008's Sophomore year was much different than that of any classes before them. With the introduction of Cosby High School, many friends were split for their Junior and Senior years, one staying at Clover Hill, and the other attending Cosby. "It will be a new and fresh start, and we'll be the first graduating class," said Sophomore Bridgette Enos. Despite the split that the Class of 2008 would have to endure, they were still excited about and anxiously looking forward to the changes and privileges that were in the near future.

Sophomore Janis Krause helps friends with their green and gold for Spirit Day. 4. Sophomore Colin Keyser enjoys a slice of pizza and the company of his friends after school.

Sophomore's To - Do List:

- log 40 driving hours and pass behind-the-wheel
- turn sweet 16
- receive driver's license
- order class ring
- enjoy last year of gym class
- find your soulmate from I-FluRtz
- participate in Tech Center orientation
- study for PSAT
- practice hard for next year's Varsity team
- prepare to finally become an upperclassman elow: Sophomore Jessi Castle rejoices after being recognized as one of the most spirited students in Clover Hill. "It was fun getting into school spirit even before spirit week...I liked my bells," said Castle. The Manchester Rival Day allowed Sophomores to share their school spirit with members of every class.

"Even though we will not be attending the same school, Kirsten Roberts and I will still remain friends through soccer."

multi-media

Media is effective in people's everyday life, especially teens. Movies, books, and television all take part in the way teens act and think. Top media features many famous actors and actresses, all influential in today's society. New movies include remakes of older movies or books being put onto the big screen. Recent books have raised controversy and television has also taken a step towards reality by basing them on real life.

Embellished and destroyed details recently became the highlight of fashion. Ranging from sequined shirts to ripped jeans, many people identified with the popular looks by making them a part of their wardrobe. The Bohemian style became a major look for many girls attracted to chunky jewelry and peasant skirts. Wallabees and oxford shirts were a popular look for the boys. The multiple looks for fashion gave students many options to choose from.

Barbara and Carolyn Ailstock

Traveling the crowded halls, students often found themselves seeing double. Constantly going through challenges together, twins shared much more than their birthdays. "We are each other's best friend. We've never been apart for more than a week," said Senior Carolyn Ailstock. Despite their similar appearances, many twins had completely opposite personalities. "Farah-Dale is really talented at music while I am more into 2-D art," said Sophomore Naomi Siodmok.

"When I was yearbook sponsor in 1998, I was asked to take two girls to a yearbook camp at Gettysburg College. I told them to bring, among other things, things for the shower, remembering from my college days the many things that could be found in a dorm room shower. After I told the girls, I realized that they might have thought I meant something other than footwear. Luckily both girls understood what I meant and to this day, I always use the term 'flip-flops'."

choices

Countless times throughout the day we make choices, those seemingly insignificant, split second decisions that must be made. However, with each choice, we change our future and shape our destiny. At times we are faced with choices that will instantly change the path that our lives will take. With these decisions, we must have the courage to take our lives into our own hands. Whether or not our choices are popular, we must have the ambition to make the decisions that will lead us to a personal sense of prosperity.

double feature

Clover Hill Live offers extra laughs

With multiple threats of cancellation, the Clover Hill Live tradition persevered, serving up yet another batch of laughs. Due to increased popularity, the drama department offered two performances for the first time since the show's birth. The first was held at three o'clock, and a sold-out seven thirty show followed on the evening of February 8, 2006. The outcome of this double feature brought in more ticket sales than any other showing of the production in the past ten years, with profits exceeding three thousand dollars. The program included skits such as Blind Date, Home Shopping Network, Booty Pageant, Faculty Feud, Hollister, Remedy for a Fat Girl, and finally closed with Sweet Dreams. These skits showcased the cast members' comedic acting abilities. "Being the only freshman, I really looked up to cast members and tried to pick up acting skills from them," said Freshman Owen Wingo. The show also featured various short films such as Super Sweet Sixty and Finding Emo to break up long performances. Seniors Kerry Marple, Phil Skates, and Christian Gregory produced these films. Proving that compromise can be made, Clover Hill Live celebrated a pair of successful performances.

■ Maggie Dupler and Lauren Hood

"Due to constant ridicule from the cast, we changed our band name a thousand times before deciding on Snorrlaxx. Even after coming to a conclusion, the cast still made fun of our name; having the opportunity to work with all of them was such a memorable experience."

- Senior
Brandon Jones

"I was impressed at the amount of energy in the auditorium and by how many alumni return to see the show. I didn't know that Clover Hill Live was such a big deal."

1. Mr. Bogdonawitz introduces the female side of Faculty Feud. "Being able to play Ms. Dufresne was the highlight of my life," said Senior Lindsey North. Back by popular demand, this traditional segment proved to be a crowd pleaser once again.

2. Seniors Susan Glynn and Solle Taghavi accompany Junior Jared Murphy as they perform the Home Shopping Network skit.

3. Students line the hallway, waiting patiently to get a front row seat for the sold-out 7:30 p.m. performance.

What was your favorite skit?

"Hollister was always so much fun to perform. There's nothing like improvising chaotic dance moves with Mike Maguire!"

- Junior Katie Wall

"I enjoyed being in the last skit, Sweet Dreams. Nobody expected Dr. Mayo to pop out of a couch and the audience loved it!"

- Senior Mark Rennie

"The Home Shopping Network was my favorite because Susan and I got to be overly bubbly like talk show women."

- Senior Solle Taghavi

"I liked Faculty Feud because I was able to really get into character. I took what I knew about Mr. Ames and made it my own."

- Junior Griffin Senning

"Performing was fun for me because it was a good opportunity to remind the entire school that I am proud of my hairy chest. I also make an attractive woman, especially if you met me on a blind date."

- Senior David Matteredra

"I tend to speak softly in person, but I have learned how to speak up on stage. One time during rehearsal, David said he couldn't hear me and handed me a microphone. This is an insult to any actor and it made me feel like I was not good enough. I cried my eyes out, and from then on I screamed all my lines while on stage."

more contestants creates range of competition

Consisting of 18 young males, Mr. Clover Hill had a much larger variety of personalities compared to past years. The SCA hosted the talent show and was able to expand the number of boys in order to allow more of the Seniors who applied a chance to impress their peers. The competition was dominated by 15 Seniors, while 3 Juniors vied for the crowd's attention. As judges, the mothers of a few students critiqued the boys on their swimwear, talent, and formalwear. To prepare for this popular event, seven mandatory practices were established to assure that the boys would be ready for the big night. Throughout these numerous practices, the contestants were able to closely bond with each other. The boys held a "Cutting Party" where they designed their shirts for the dance portion of the competition as well as enjoyed a pizza party before the performance began. By the end of the night, Senior Brandon Jones was awarded the traditional cape and crown and was named Mr. Clover Hill. "It was an awesome experience, and I was able to meet a lot of new people. This was just a great way to promote school spirit and a very memorable moment for my Senior year," said Jones.

■ Christina Choi and Taylor Romero

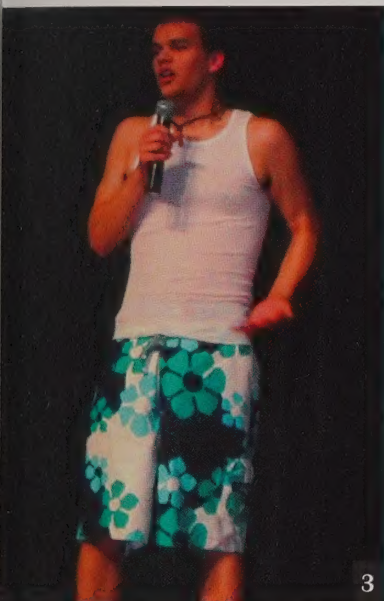

"My favorite part of the show was being able to perform in front of everyone. That's what really mattered to me."

- Junior
Alan Davis

"I got the idea for my swimsuit when they were doing a lot of construction outside of my house. As soon as I saw those traffic cones, I decided to take a few and make it my costume."

- Senior

1. Passing on the tradition, Senior Joel Simpson crowns Senior Brandon Jones with the coveted cape and crown. "Brandon made my eighteenth birthday the most memorable experience for me," said Senior Kady Salmon. She was Jones' escort and stood by his side to hear the results of the competition.

2. Opening the show, the SCA officers provide an introduction before the competition begins.

3. During the swimsuit competition, Junior Addison Webb shares his most embarrassing moment with the audience.

What was your favorite part of the show to participate in?

"I enjoyed strutting my stuff in my formal wear. I was nervous about what question I'd get, but I think I rocked it."

- Senior

new drama teacher adds twist to audience placement

The new drama teacher added a unique twist to the spring play performed on the nights of March 23rd, 24th, and 25th. Maggie Szydlowski, the director of the play, decided to place stadium arranged chairs on the stage, putting the audience closer to the play. "The audience needed to be closer to the action to understand it. At some points, the actors are even directed to talk to the audience," said Szydlowski. The play, An Italian Straw Hat, was staged at Longwood University while Ms. Szydlowski was attending the school, although she played no part in the production. The spring play was the first major production on the part of Ms. Maggie Szydlowski. "Although I wasn't involved in the play while at college, I heard nothing but good things and decided to choose that play for my first production," said Szydlowski. A noticeable difference in this spring play was the larger presence of freshmen involved. There were as many freshmen in the production as sophomores, juniors, and seniors combined. This addition of underclassmen, however, proved successful as it was throughouly enjoyed by both the cast and the audience.

students live it up in the city life

Students filled the dance floor on the night of Saturday, May 13th for the annual Junior/Senior Prom. Around 8 o'clock, students arrived in various cars, ranging in models from stretch Limousines to mom's mini van. Once individuals, as well as couples, made their way into the ballroom, they were greeted with both a multitude of balloons and stars hanging from the ceiling. Vivid paintings of New York City buildings and lights lined the walls, as students were given a taste of city nightlife. "The Junior class really out did themselves. I did not think they could compete with our bridge and fountain, but the lights were gorgeous. The Junior class decorations made my Senior Prom unforgettable," said Senior Jamienne Taylor. Students danced the night away to a variety of songs by differing artists, ranging from the popular 80's group Queen, to Bubba Sparxxx, a modern rapper. At 10:30 p.m., the Prom Court made their way down to the middle of the floor as twins, Seniors Michael and Molly Mahoney, were crowned Prom King and Queen. As the evening came to a close, students slowly faded out of the building, carrying memories to last a lifetime.

■ Chelsea Sligh and Kirsten Roberts

"Dances always allow me to let loose and just have a good time with my friends. Since I knew this was the last chance I had to go to a high school dance with my boyfriend, I knew we had to make dancing above the city lights worth it."

- Junior

"Prom was a great way to end my four years here. It was a lot of fun spending the evening with my boyfriend, especially since he doesn't go here anymore. We had so much fun with all of our friends, just celebrating the end of high school."

1. Seniors Josh McCue and Colby Senning break it down on the dance floor with everyone cheering them on. "Making a huge circle and breakdancing, that was awesome-WOOOAH. I had fun being there with my girlfriend and friends," said McCue. Break dancing was a popular trend at Prom, as everybody was ready to join in and show off their own moves.

post prom brings clean, safe fun for all

As prom wound down, students were eager to spend the rest of their night at Post Prom. Held at the Robious Sports and Fitness Center, the PTSA once again provided students with activities, food, and fun. Sumo wrestling, karaoke, gambling, tattoos, and rock climbing were just a few of the traditional ways that students could participate. "I enjoyed the karaoke because I liked screaming the songs with my friends," said Senior Andy Taylor. Along with the traditional post prom activities, the addition of a "chill room" and a mechanical bull made Post Prom an even bigger success. "The mechanical bull was fun because it was different and definitely something I have never done before," said Senior Devan Fitzpatrick. Post Prom once again provided a safe yet fun environment for students to spend their night after the big dance. Its purpose was to keep students from drinking and driving, but year after year, it has gained a reputation for providing a great time and great memories for faculty and friends alike.

Early predictions for the soccer season were hopeful, but an early, non-district loss made the team re-evaluate where they were headed. "I thought the loss made us stronger for the rest of the season; it was a wake-up call. We realized that the season wasn't going to be as easy as we thought," said Senior Tanner Kramer. However, after an inspiring speech from Coach Anderson, the team fought harder for every ball and continued to dominate at each match afterwards. "After we lost our first game in the early part of the season to Deep Run, Coach Anderson said he did not want us to lose a single ball in the air again. The next night we played Godwin, who were even bigger and taller than Deep Run. I don't recall anyone on our team losing a header in our 1 to 0 win," said Senior Carter McKissick. Despite several obstacles, the team remained strong and continued to play hard during every practice and each game. A mid-season absence of some of the senior players forced the underclass varsity players to step up and help to carry the team on the field. "When the team was in need, I felt it was my job to step up and help my team keep their title," said Sophomore Ben Jessee. Despite the many adversities, the team pulled through for a very successful season, winning the Dominion District Tournament for the fourth year in a row. With a strong showing in the Central Region Tournament, the Varsity team qualified for the State Tournament.

headed in the right direction young team brings more ability and success

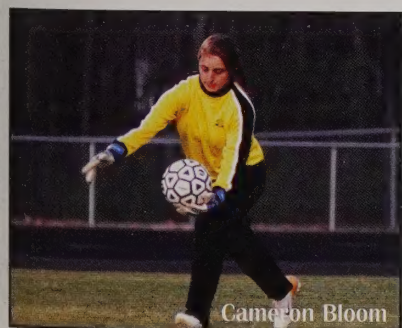

Competing with a young and fresh team, the Women's Varsity Soccer Team proved they were still very experienced. An addition of four freshmen and one sophomore to the eleven juniors and six seniors made up the team; however, with a 16 and 3 record, the girls showed that their youth didn't matter. In order to ensure the teams were united, Varsity and Junior Varsity coach Ms. Bird planned several team bonding activities. The Junior Varsity team had many bonding activities, including a sleepover, outings to restaurants, and making T-shirts. These experiences paid off for them, as they finished the regular season with an undefeated record. Before several important games, the Varsity team had scavenger hunts to follow throughout the school day to get them hyped for the game later that night. Other team bonding plans included a dinner at Chuck-E-Cheese, sleepovers, and tie-dying. "Having the girls spend the night at my house really helped us get to know each other better, and in result, our performance on the field got better too," said Senior Maggie McFadden. These experiences added to the team's success as they captured the title of Dominion District Champions. Even with a loss to Monacan in the District Tournament, the team bounced back and defeated Deep Run and Hanover to win the Central Region. Although the Varsity team's season ended with a defeat against Lake Braddock, it was an accomplishment to reach the state quarterfinals.

The Varsity Baseball team is traditionally known for flying through the season to the district tournament with ease, but this season was a bit different. With the loss of nine graduating seniors in the previous season, this year's team was comparatively young. The team included several underclassmen, like Sophomore Greg Moon, who made appearances on both the J.V. and Varsity levels. In the middle of the season, a few of the players were unable to perform in two weeks worth of games. This absence hindered the boys' game, but not their spirits. "We were still the same. We made a run for the District tournament, and we were ready to fight a long battle," said Junior Paul Brown. The team practiced every day after school, including several Saturdays in order to overcome these issues. "Being on the baseball team took a lot of dedication. We practiced two to three hours every day, but it was all worth it when we saw the results of our hard work in the games," said Senior John Nesmith. Despite their trials, the baseball team continued to perform well. In addition, the Junior Varsity team dominated throughout the regular season. In the Midlothian Invitational J.V. Baseball Tournament, the boys went undefeated and gained the championship title. The Junior Varsity's season record was 18-3. The Varsity team concluded the season with a 12-10 record. Seeded fourth in the District tournament, the Varsity team defeated the District Champions, Monacan. In the District finals they faced James River. Despite their loss, the baseball team maintained their winning record.

young players inspire increased teamwork

With only six returning players, the Varsity Softball team had to work diligently in order to prepare for their upcoming games. Returning from Winter Break, the girls attended two hour practices to not only improve their skills but also to increase team unity. In addition to a lack of returning players, the girls faced the additional challenge of having a roster consisting of six upperclassmen and a majority of underclassmen. In order to inspire the team to work well together on the field, team captains, Seniors Hannah Thornton and Taylor Muniz, developed games, created activities, and held parties to encourage team friendships. "At the beginning of the season, we played a game of basketball as a team building experience, but we were all so competitive that it turned into a hilarious fight for every shot. The game helped us grow closer so that we could have fun both on and off the field," said Junior Elizabeth Peek. The Junior Varsity team was similarly affected by the addition of younger players. The JV team, including four eighth graders and a new coach, Officer Corbin, ended their season with a 16-3 record. Overcoming obstacles by promoting team harmony, the Varsity Softball team concluded their season with an 8-11 record.

an increase in number causes increased success

It's true that two heads may be better than one, but two rackets definitely proved to be better than one as well. As opposed to previous years, the Mens' Tennis team increased its numbers during this season. Instead of picking and choosing individuals at team try-outs, the coaches thought that all individuals should be given the opportunity to be a part of the team. Though not all members played throughout the season, they were able to practice, as well as bond, with other teammates. "Because so many more players were added this year, we were able to develop as both individuals and as a team. We learned from each other, and it allowed us to bring out the best of our skills, while utilizing each other to increase our successes," said Senior Jason Byrd. Because there was an increase in the addition of players, as well as participation from those who had previously been on the team, teammates had to focus on learning each other's attributes and playing styles. With new members came new talents as well as new personalities. The influx of players allowed the boys to interact with one another and thus sharpen their skills, causing them to defeat various teams in a multitude of matches. Through their success, the boys' team finished first in the District and made it to the Regional Tournament, proving that perfection is often achieved in numbers.

The Women's Tennis team started the season fresh with a new coach, and therefore new initiatives. Joel Highum, a full-time teacher at Monocan High School, came to the home of the Cavaliers to coach the girls and lead them to success. As opposed to previous years, this coach's methods during both practice and game play varied substantially. Practices were more intense with a stronger focus on perfection. The girls were encouraged to give their all during each practice so that real matches were simple upon their arrival. Instead of using practices to socialize and play half-heartedly, the girls were taught the self-discipline necessary for success. Coach Highum interacted with the girls from the sidelines, giving them both verbal incentive and constructive criticism at each practice and match. "He made the season a great learning experience. We learned a lot about strategies, while at the same time having a lot of fun," said Freshman Christine Penterson. The girls utilized their own strategies, as well as Coach Highum's, to achieve their personal best during the season. A mixture of tactics allowed the girls to experiment with their playing, while influencing each other as well. With both the coach's and their teammates' encouragement, the girls ended the season with a third place in the District.

foreign language

Foreign language classes were offered in order to expose students to different languages and cultures from other countries. In addition to more outgoing and amusing classes, there were several new teachers to join the foreign language staff. The Latin and French departments both welcomed new teachers, Ms. Wilson, Ms. Kymmell and Ms. Wydell. "Taking Latin is enjoyable for me and it's a plus on college applications," said Junior Paige Mische. Students chose to take foreign language classes for that reason and for an opportunity to receive college credit by taking Advanced Placement courses. Along with other changes, the foreign language classes received new textbooks and CDs for learning purposes. Some Spanish classes even used three textbooks and three listening CDs per student. These devices made it possible for students to learn out loud and work on their speaking and listening skills in class. Foreign language classes were important because they opened doors for students to learn what is outside their normal culture.

1. Latin teacher Ms. Wilson hands Junior Taylor Godsey a paper of Latin translations. 2. Spanish teacher Mrs. Southall instructs her Spanish 4 class. 3. Latin teacher Mrs. Myrick explains to her Latin 4 students about Julius Caesar. 4. French teacher Ms. Hilger writes down homework for her French 4 class.

Freshman Mark Williams helps Freshman Aaron Capek prepare for the State Marketing Competition. 4. Sophomores Mary Ann Hill and Betsy Moeller cram before a quiz in Sports Marketing.

Marketing teachers try their best to prepare students for what's next to come after high school. Every class was spent teaching students about business and how to succeed in the real world. Students chose from several different courses, such as Marketing Management, International Marketing, Career Awareness and Free Enterprise, Sports Marketing, Intro to Marketing, and Marketing Co-op. "I took Sports Marketing because I was very interested in athletics and expanding my knowledge in marketing," said Senior Rebekah Wagner. To help raise money for the marketing club, DECA, the teachers offered all their students baked cookies for $.50 each. Whenever a student had trouble finding a job or career that interested them, each of the teachers were ready and willing to give their advice. Before the year ended, the teachers had high hopes that they made a memorable impression on each student.

I got to see a lot more perspectives, and it was fun to help them learn new journalism skills," said Giaimo. Newspaper allowed students to show their creativity in both writing and photography.

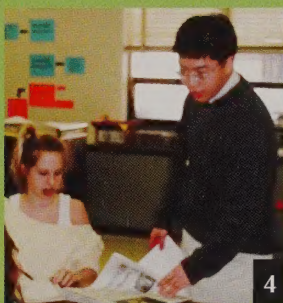

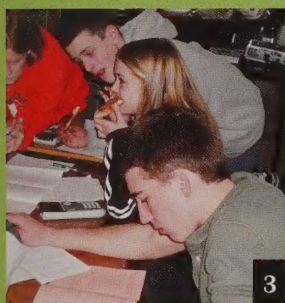

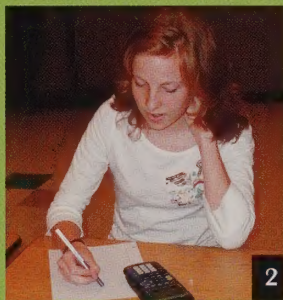

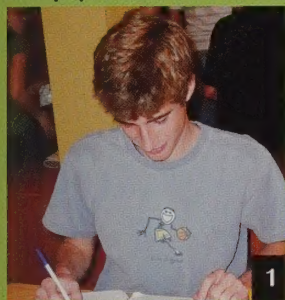

When choosing staff members for the Cavalier Chronicle, strong writers were a top priority in the selection process. Many applicants fit the description, so the number of staff chosen was more than usual. With these new additions of staff, editors not only had their usual duties but also the added responsibility of preparing the staff. "With so many younger staff writers, the editors tried to focus on teaching them the skills they will need to be successful future editors," said Senior Megan Shepherd. Staff writers were assigned to a different editor each deadline so they could see the obligations of each editor. After all deadlines, each writer was given a section of the paper to make corrections on. With the thorough preparations that the staff writers received, the newspaper continued to provide students with an up-to-date account of events and activities.

The Mathematics and Science High School has always been known for its advanced classes and strenuous work load, but new outreach programs allowed students to help middle schoolers succeed. In the fall, select Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors from the Mathematics and Science School formed teams and went to local middle schools to teach lessons to eighth graders. "It was a new and exciting experience to be the teacher instead of the student. I got to experience the pain and joy that I put my teachers through," said Junior Jin Yoo. During the winter, various other Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors were selected to help Math Counts teams prepare for the American Math Competition. These students met after school to tutor the middle schoolers and help them figure out strategies to succeed on the tests. With both outreach programs, the Mathematics and Science School aimed to reach more students than before.

day in the life -juniors

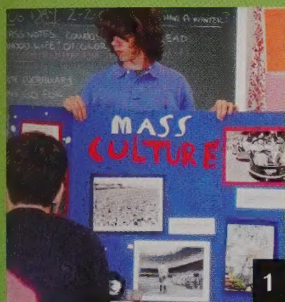

As Juniors, many students began carefully thinking about their futures. Whether college-bound or pursuing a dream career, the time came to narrow down the options that students had. Critical decisions were made throughout this period, like choosing the right courses in scheduling. Academic achievement was vital during these two semesters as well. Some Juniors decided to take Advanced Placement courses, including AP U.S. History and AP Chemistry. "In AP U.S., we got to discover reasons why people in history acted certain ways, and it was interesting to learn about the common American in different periods of history," said Junior Stephanie Clark. Another obstacle that faced most Juniors were the SAT's, which counselors urged them to take in order to qualify for college. Balancing the stress and the enjoyment as upperclassmen, students found this life-altering time as one of the most challenging.

Juniors' To-Do List:

- become an upperclassman
- get driver's license
- park in the pit
- car pool (even/odd days)
- deal with the hardest year of high school
- take AP classes
- ring ceremony
- powder puff football game
- first invite to prom
- make the Varsity team
- take SAT's
- start thinking about colleges and career paths elow: Together, Juniors Melissa Holmes and Kristen Keys get ready to present their posters to the entire U.S. history class. "Junior year is by far the toughest, due to its importance to colleges, yet the most fun, with playing in powder puff, receiving our class rings, and going to prom," said Holmes. Students found that using visual art could capture their attention more in learning the lessons prepared by their teachers.

"Junior year was very tough, yet a fun experience that I will always remember. P.S. Kiss me, I'm a Junior."

Having a part time job seemed to be a regular activity for students. Whether they were trying to save up some money or waiting to get paid only to spend it at the first chance they get, part time jobs became increasingly popular. "I work so that I can fix up my car and have a little left over to do whatever I want," said Senior Alicia Ingram. It's not easy to try and juggle school, work, and everyday life in general, but regardless, the majority of students took on the challenge.

How much money have you put into fixing or "hooking up" your car?

Between $0 and $500 - 34%

Between $500 and $1,000 - 18%

Between $1,000 and $5,000 - 30%

$5,000 and up - 18%

From repairing breaks and installing stereo systems, to attaching body kits, high school students are always finding some sort of disappointment with their cars. Today more than ever, teenage drivers devote much of their hard-earned cash to "hooking up" their cars as a way of enhancing their looks and driving capabilities, while still others are forced to use their money to fix everyday mishaps with their vehicle. Whether it is used to buy new rims or to fix a defroster, when it's money put towards a car, every student is determined that it is money well spent.

■ Rachel Hoagland

Right: Though some students decide to invest personal spendings into their car for individual reasons, many often find some sort of inspiration before beginning the process. "After going to a car show, I got really into buying new stuff for my truck. I have put a lot of money into it over the past couple of years and am happy with the way it has turned out," said Senior Martin Bolls. More often than not, it took students multiple years before they were satisfied with their vehicle.

At the beginning of the year, students met a new principal, Dr. Debbie Marks. Beginning with music in the mornings, it instantly became clear that school would be different. Dr. Marks could be seen everywhere, whether in the halls, the office, or in the commons. Her influence led to a warmer atmosphere and an unforgettable high school experience, especially for the Class of 2006. Her presence brought the students closer together and brought unity to the hallways of the school.

changes

With growth and experience come the changes that create individuality in our lives. With these changes we allow ourselves to step outside the box and confront life head on. Whether attending a new high school, going to college, or merely deciding to take an AP class, the changes that come our way are inevitable. Welcome these changes with open arms, as they will often offer life changing experiences. For the Class of 2006, life beyond these walls will present the opportunity to create a lasting legacy. These changes are simply a way to become everything you ever wanted to be.

day in the life -seniors

Whether because of the additional lunch line, the five minute early dismissal, the reserved bathrooms, or the spots in the upper parking lot, becoming a Senior was one of the most anticipated high school experiences. Along with these freedoms, however, came added responsibility. With college fast approaching, Seniors' schedules incorporated higher level classes, such as Advanced Placement and Dual Enrollment. "Even though my multiple AP classes have been a lot of work, I'm used to having to push myself in my classes," said Senior Michelle Han. Seniors also had the burden of applying for colleges and scholarships added to their daily workload from teachers dedicated to preparing them for future careers. Senior year was a time for reflection as graduation marked the end of a collection of memories, ranging from late night studying to hanging out with friends.

teaching

with a twist

absence of faculty left Seniors on their own

The tradition of Senior Leadership Day continued, but Seniors had minimal back-up with most of the administration gone. While the teachers appreciated the chance to relax, the Seniors felt a surge of power. Students had to sign up and be approved by Mr. Martin and Mrs. Lukens in order to participate in the take-over. Despite the teachers' privilege to have "casual Friday," those participating in the take-over were expected to present themselves in professional attire. "Being a gym teacher, I was able to wear athletic clothing, although I feel it was necessary to dress professionally to receive the respect needed from the students," said Senior Kate McGowan. Many of the departments provided lunches for their student teachers, allowing them to take advantage of their new roles. From lunch ladies to English teachers, the Seniors were finally able to turn the tables on their peers by sending those who were disruptive to the student administrators. Senior Leadership Day served as a learning experience of responsibility as well as a springboard for the Seniors to use as they went off on their own.

1. Senior Class Officers Kendra Grinnage, Liz Letchford, Brandon Jones, Jamienne Taylor, Solle Taghavi and Emily Gray act intimidating as administrators. "Senior Leadership Day was special for me because it was my Senior year and I got to help take over the entire school. The only bad part was when I got yelled at for asking people to take off their hats, but it was my job," said Taylor.

2. Seniors Kenzie Lockie, Rebekah Wagner, and Hannah Armstrong call after a student leaving the parking lot without a pass.

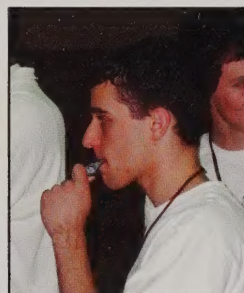

3. Senior Sunny Patel serves his fellow students their lunches in the Senior line.

What was it like to finally experience the power of running the school for a day?

"It was tough managing 26 kids a class, especially when they were getting injured and the actual teacher wasn't there."

- Senior
Joe Mehfoud

"It was challenging because of all the responsibility."

- Senior
Matt Clark

"It was weird serving food instead of getting served. It felt good knowing I could hook my friends up with a lot of food."

senior show introduces new faces

As opposed to previous years, the Senior Show featured many new, first-time performers who introduced a multitude of innovative talents. Though the main character of the play, known as the crazy Mrs. Savage, was played by Senior Solle Taghavi, multiple other actors and actresses also accompanied her in the performance. Being cast in The Curious Savage gave many students the opportunity to experience Hollywood life under the spotlight, perhaps even for the first time. "I do not think they could have had a better cast for the play; all the different people made a great show for all of us," said Senior Dina Comer. New editions to the show provided for multiple personalities which allowed each performance to have its own individual twist. Not only did the unique faces add flare to the Senior Show, but it was a great way for each newcomer to end their year. Both the diversity of the cast and the depth of their talent left the audience and the cast applauding for more.

■ Chelsea Sligh and Kirsten Roberts

Above: Senior Joel Simpson portrays the character of Mrs. Savage's greedy son. Throughout the play, all cast members contributed various personalities and talents under the spotlight.

"Since I was a Freshman, I have wanted to be a part of the Senior Show, so it was really enjoyable for me to have the opportunity along with a lot of my close friends who were also in the play."

- Senior
Andrew Godburn

"I had an awesome time just getting know all of the cast and crew and having the chance to perform with them. The show was also a great way for me to learn to act under pressure."

- Senior
Priscilla Douberly

What kind of things do you do to prepare for the play, individually or as a group?

1. The entire cast acts out a scene in the living room of The Curious Savage. "The Senior Show is a fantastic way to end the year because it allows Seniors to take their characters to the next level before they go off into the world," said Taghavi. Everyone worked everyday with very little time until opening night.

2. Seniors Dina Comer, Chris Nicosia, Solle Taghavi, and Brandon Jones discuss the problem between Mrs. Savage and her children.

3. Senior Solle Taghavi portrays the sneaky Mrs. Savage, as she reads an article published in the newspaper about herself.

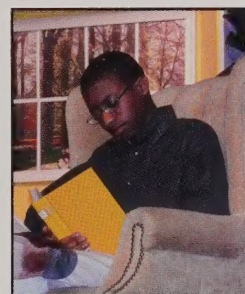

"Before the show began, I just walked around to see everyone to wish them good luck in their performance."

- Senior
Chris Nicosia

"Two of my best friends were in the play, and we just had a good time goofing off before the show."

- Senior
Lheanna Harris

"I was still trying to memorize my lines two minutes before the show; they recast me four days before the show."

- Senior
Brandon Jones

"For every play we always have down time where we are given time to think about the play and all we have been through."

- Sophomore
Catherine Cox

"Theater is a way of life for me, and I'm happy to have two good years of that lifestyle go to the Senior Show and continue to go to my high school career."

- Sophomore
Travis Adams

"I definitely thought it was an exciting way to end my Senior career, as well as my theater career. Being able to do the Senior Show with all of my friends I am graduating with was really special for me too."

to the night

senior banquets provide a last stepping stone

"Here's to the nights we felt alive. Here's to the tears you knew you'd cry. Here's to goodbye, tomorrow is gonna come too soon." As described in this song by Eve6, the nearing of the end of the school year was bittersweet for seniors. To celebrate their class' time together, the Senior Banquet was held at the Holiday Day Inn on May 31, while the Mathematics and Science Banquet was held at the Sheraton Inn on May 21. The banquets provided the seniors with a chance to converse with old friends and create new memories. "The banquet was a good chance to enjoy the company of friends for one of the last times and reflect on the year," said Senior Andrew Godburn. As Senior Class President Liz Letchford gave the opening speech, seniors awaited anxiously to begin eating. Before the main course was served, Senior Class Vice President Brandon Jones raised a toast to the future. The rest of the evening included Senior Superlative awards, the Senior Slideshow, the distribution of Last Wills and Testaments and lots of picture taking. As the night progressed, seniors shared laughter and tears, finally realizing that graduation was less than two weeks away.

■ Amber DeAngelo and Brittany Gambardella

"The cordon-bleu tasted like a sponge...I should have ordered the prime rib!"

- Senior
Billy Sharp

"Senior Banquet was a great end to Senior year. It was nice to get to see everyone together."

- Senior
Laura Scott

1. Seniors Chelsea Sligh, Lindsey North, Courtney Traylor, Kristen Monahan, Brittany Collins, and Kendall Synder pose for a picture after dessert. "The Banquet was bittersweet because we're all together for a final time and we all got to look back on all the memories we've had with everyone for the past 13 years," said Traylor. Following dessert the Seniors congregated to the front to view the slideshow.

2. Overjoyed yet saddened by the memories, Senior Amanda Loviza embraces Senior Susan Glynn.

3. Upon waiting to enter the ball-room, Seniors Ali Rowden and Lyndsey Lewis stop for a refreshment.

What was the most memorable moment of the Senior Banquet?

"I think it was the first time I've cried so far. It really brought this whole thing into perspective."

- Senior
Brittany Hughes

"I enjoyed the slideshow. It was funny seeing all my classmates at different periods of their lives."

- Senior
Kyle Johnson

"I liked seeing all the pictures from back in the day and having one last get-together with all the seniors."

- Senior
Tyler Gillispie

"The Senior Slideshow was a great way to laugh at all of our old and new memories together."

soak up the sun

seniors have a splash at the picnic and pool party

With few clouds in sight, the seniors experienced a sneak peek of summer as the sun shined brightly overhead. On May 26th 2006, the Senior Class attended their Scholarship and Awards Assembly then gathered in the football stadium for their annual picnic. "The sweltering heat was exhausting," said Senior Kaylee Rowsell. The picnic menu consisted of pork BBQ, coleslaw, baked beans, a fudge brownie, and ice cold lemonade to wash it all down. "We had the most crucial game of football going when I realized how much I'm going to miss everyone when we go off to college," said Senior Freddie Angel. At 1:15 P.M. the seniors were released to go to the Woodlake Swim and Racquet Club for the pool party. There were drinks, snacks, and free snowcones provided as well as lots of volleyball and swimming. "There was perfect weather and the water was cool, which was nice especially when people tend to push you in the water!" said Senior Devan Fitzpatrick. With the close of a successful picnic and pool party, the Seniors proved that nothing could rain on their parade.

■ Maggie Dupler and Lauren Hood

Above: Seniors gather around each other to share their picnic lunch and chat about the upcoming pool party. Students enjoyed socializing among themselves while others formed teams and played frisbee, football, and soccer games.

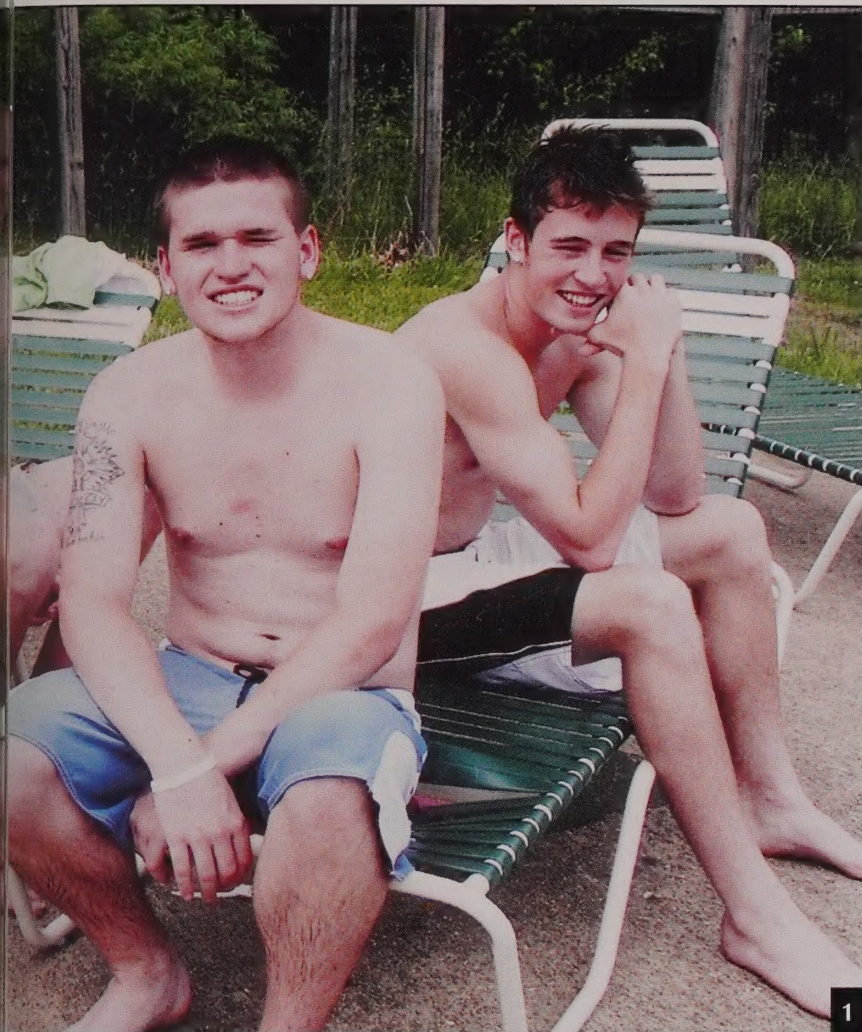

"I was trying to get some sun with my friend Amanda Loviza when Doug Hill and Burton Pagararo threw me over their shoulders and dumped me into the pool. The water was freezing at first, but then it was more of a refreshing feeling."

- Senior
Hannah Thornton

"The food at the picnic was quite good. Maybe someday we'll invent some kind of magical plant that can supply us with great taste and nutrition. Until then all I have to say is sorry Mr. Pig, but you sure tasted good."

- Senior
Max McCall

1. A group of senior boys lounge on the lawn chairs near the pool's volleyball court. "The pool party was everything I thought it would be; the water was cool, the sun was out, and the girls were looking nice," said Senior Carter McKissick. A warm, sunny day contributed to a memorable senior experience.

2. Hanging out in the pool, Senior girls gather for a picture as they take a dip in the chilly water.

3. Barefoot and happy, Senior Courtney Cavedo flings the frisbee towards a friend after finishing lunch.

"The pool party was a great way to wrap up the year with my buddies, and I even got a free cotton candy snow cone! Actually, I must have had like five of them. Even though it didn't really taste like cotton candy, they were still really tasty.

- Senior Jimmy Pierce

"After a long and busy day at the scholarship ceremony and the heat during the picnic, the pool party was perfect. Relaxing and laying out by the pool was exactly what I wanted to do. Not to mention - amazing and free snowcones."

- Senior Jamienne Taylor

What was your favorite part of the Senior Picnic and Pool Party?

"I loved playing volleyball at the pool party! We creamed the other team and it was fun to hang out and get a tan."

- Senior Alexa Thompson

"The picnic was a great time to eat, hang out, throw a frisbee or fly a kite... except we brought a broken kite that didn't fly."

- Senior Steven Brindle

"Being able to spend time together as a class for one of the last times was great. At first it was hot, but it was better at the pool."

- Senior Brittney Cox

"It started thundering and I thought all was lost, but Christian Gregory hollered at me to join a game of volleyball and I had the time of my life!"

Receiving their diplomas

the final crossroad

graduates receive inspiration from speakers

On June 15, the graduating class of 2006 filed into the VCU Stuart Siegel Center observed by faculty, family, and friends. Dressed in the traditional cap and gown, and adorned with cords, medals, and other decorations signifying the numerous achievements of the class of 2006, the graduates proceeded to their seats in anticipation of receiving their diplomas. SCA President, Senior Jaimie Eissler, and Class President, Senior Liz Letchford, opened the commencement ceremony with the Pledge and offered their congratulations to their fellow classmates. "In the words of Edward Koch, 'the fireworks begin today. Each diploma is a lighted match; each one of you is a fuse. Class of 2006, take your education, take your goals, take your passion, and light the world on fire,'" said Letchford. Also attending the ceremony was Dr. Billy K. Cannaday Jr., the Superintendent of Chesterfield County Public Schools. Following Dr. Cannaday's speech, the Math and Science representative, Senior Michael Mahoney, the Salutatorian, Senior Michelle Han, and the Valedictorian, Senior Hannah Thornton, were called forward to address their class. Moving their tassels from right to left and tossing their caps into the air, Seniors marked the final crossroad in their high school career and the start of their lives as alumni of Clover Hill High School.

german club

German club is known for its selection of food at every meeting. "The refreshments and food are something I know I can count on German club for," said Senior Ed Gurnick. Students were inspired by the constant food at the meetings to bake food of their own and bring it in.

facts

German Club has been a fun and innovative club that has been passed down from German teacher to German teacher. The sponsor, Mr. Kyle Remppies, made it a priority to have a meeting once a month with various activities, such as cooking contests. The club also entertained the German exchange students when they came to America.

french club

French Club members cut out pictures for collages that they worked on during a club meeting.

Senior officers Michelle Han and Lindsay Mackey discuss plans for the next club meeting.

Q&A

What was your favorite event of French Club?

"The day for French food is always fun. We get to bring in different dishes from French culture and judge them based on taste and creativity. It is one of the best days of French Club."

- Senior Lindsay Mackey

science bowl

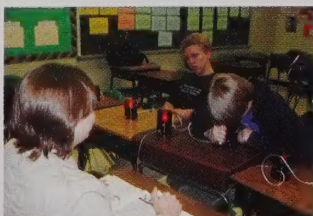

After a question is asked, Senior George Washington, Freshman Ian Tomlin, and Senior Katie Puckett each hit the buzzer in hopes of answering. "Our practices paid off; though we did not do as well as we would have liked at the competition, we have still learned a lot of interesting facts," said Junior Maya Iyengar.

facts

Existing only for two years, this club participated in an annual science bowl for a monetary reward. They had practices weekly in preparation for this event in which they were exposed to countless science facts. Though their sponsor, Mr. Helms, left to work for NASA, they pushed forth and competed well in the bowl.

students for tolerance

The members of Students for Tolerance look at a website that shows ways to be tolerant. They worked to help high schoolers accept other people and to be true to themselves. With the pressure to be liked by their peers, club members raised awareness of acceptance around the school.

facts

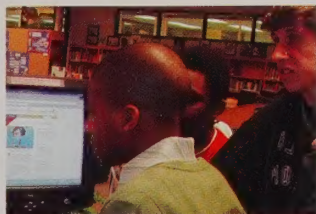

Students for Tolerance is a club that gives its members a place to come and talk about controversial issues. This club helped students to become less judgmental and more open to other people's beliefs. "It gives students the knowledge to tell the difference between tolerance and apathy," said Senior Carolyn Ailstock.

research council

facts

The Research Council is a club designed to allow students to help their peers with projects and enrich their own love for science. The club met after school to work on projects, many of which were submitted to science fairs, including the Metro Richmond Science Fair and various symposiums at colleges around the state. The members also devoted countless hours of their own time to work on and perfect their experiments.

Trophies are displayed at the Metro Richmond Science Fair. "Research Council has allowed me to share my love of science and research with younger students, and helps to prepare me for my education in engineering at MIT," said Senior Katie Puckett.

cross-alive

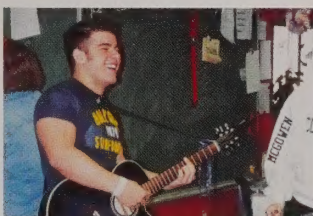

Several members of Cross-Alive gather for a quick picture during a weekly meeting. "I really enjoy seeing familiar faces every Thursday after school," said Freshman Charlie Howk. Over the course of the year, thanks to the frequent meetings, several close friendships were made.

facts

After an executive decision in the spring of 2005, two Christian clubs, Crosspoint and Youth-Alive, were combined to form Cross-Alive. Members created many new friendships while enjoying a wide range of activities, including prayer, games, Bible lessons, and the company of one another. Each Thursday, members gathered for food, fellowship, and fun.

First Row: C. Markham, K. Haynes, E. Andrews, K. McGowan, L. Letchford, K. Rowsell, W. Green, B. Laigaie. Second Row: J. Moye, J. Tibbs, R. Decker, M. Wisniewski, A. Fogg, S. Scafer, A. guitar club

Sophomores Logan Issac, Ian Best and Freshman Jo Campbell have fun while rocking out with their guitars. Some members of Guitar Club were in bands while others simply enjoyed playing as a hobby.

facts

In guitar club, people who enjoy music could come together and jam. There was also a new special feature of the club, where beginners could come to learn how to play the guitar and some new songs. Guitar Club was a time for fellow players to come together to share their love of music.

First Row: Nick Munno, Mark Meadows, Kendall Williams.
Second Row: Alex Potter, James Barnes, Jenna Ogden, Christine Golden.

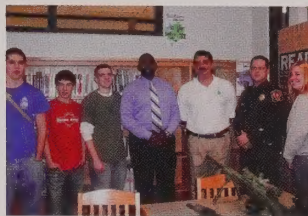

Sophomore Everett Bartlett finds some time to relax and play his guitar.

Freshman Justin Dabney, Jack Shaughnessy, Blair English, and Max Minter have fun while having a jam session.

crime solvers

Left: Following an assembly, students ask a guest speaker what duties are required as a policeman. "After meeting with Officer White, it inspired me to look for a career in law enforcement," says Sophomore Andrew MacMillan.

Above: Sophomores Jessica Sides and Laurie Gast look over the equipment brought by a S.W.A.T. team member.

Left: Junior Jonathan Walker hangs a poster to support the awareness of crimes committed in the community.

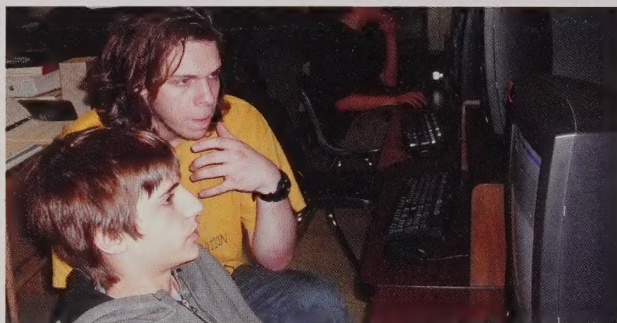

facts

Crime Solvers was started in the 1970's after numerous witnesses in a homicide case were too scared to come forward. Throughout the years, Crime Solvers has given students the opportunity to anonymously provide information to the police. A mentor to students, Officer Damion White sponsored the club on behalf of the Chesterfield County Police Department.

programming team

Freshman Jack Newton and Senior Thomas Goff work together to program a game. The Programming team consisted of people with different talents, including programmers, directors and artists.

facts

Programming Team members grew to realize their individual computer strengths and weaknesses. During their monthly meetings, members were given a programming problem to solve. The hours spent solving complex dilemmas in meetings prepared each member for a future career in computer programming.

Senior Quinton Smith begins to design a new program.

robotics

Left: During the building season, every member's input matters. "Even after losing our mentor Mr. Helms to NASA, we still stuck together as a team and produced a working robot," said Senior Kaitlyn Tuley.

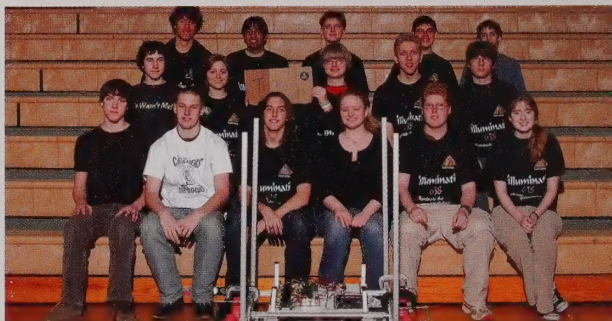

Above: Seniors Kyle Racette and Matt Via attempt to get their robot atop the platform for points.

facts

Given the challenge to build a robot and to complete the assigned missions in less time and with less money and resources than needed, each robotics team from around the world produced just that and competed in 1 of 33 regional competitions for a place in Nationals held in Atlanta, Georgia. Participating in these competitions was a grand achievement for the Clover Hill Robotics team.

First Row: K. Racette, D. Barnett, S. Paulette, B. Norman, M. Via, K. Tuley. Second Row: T. White, K. Puckett, T. Goff, I. Tomlin, G. Washington, B. Kern. Third Row: K. Kirksey, S. Deevi, B. Michalowski, T. Taylor, J. Newton.

academic team

Freshman Ian Tomlin consults others before saying an answer. "Academic team is fun, and, at the same time, challenging. It's one of the few times in life where doing or saying something stupid is funny," said Tomlin. The Academic team competed in activities and practices two times a week to improve their abilities.

facts

The Academic team participated in many events throughout the year. They won the Scholastic Bowl, a competition where other academic teams from the area competed with each other. Another competition they were involved in was Battle of the Brains, which aired on a local television channel every Saturday morning.

First Row: Mr. Loret, A. Yang, P. Saraiya, J. Byrd, G. Washington, J. Joyce, Sponsor Mrs. Bordon. Second Row: K. Christian, E. Gurnick, A. Demmurt, M. Via, T. Page, M. Brown. Third Row: K. Tuley, K. Puckett, G. Katta, I. Town, S. Cardwell, J. Joyce, E. Peek.

Freshman Charlie Howk and Junior Elizabeth Peek answer a challenging question.

writer's guild

Left: Sophomores Trevor Beattre and Morgan Halverson wait for a meeting to begin. "This is the creative process," said Trevor Beattre. Every week the group gathers together to brainstorm ideas for their next assignment.

Above: Sophomore Rachel Disselkamp and Junior Jessica Burton enjoy listening to their fellow writer's story.

facts

Every other Wednesday, these inventive, sometimes goofy group of writers came together to share their most recent literature concoctions. Writer's Guild was a place for individual character to be set free. It allowed these students to break loose from the rest of the student body through their creativity.

First Row: Amanda Rogan, Rachel Disselkamp, Jessica Burton. Second Row: Morgan Halverson, Christy Anderson, Zak Heerbrandt, Daniel Montrose.

None of us knows what the next change is going to be, what unexpected opportunity is just around the corner, waiting a few months or a few years to change all the tenor of our lives.

TIME-TESTED BEAUTY TIPS

For attractive lips, speak words of kindness,

For lovely eyes, seek out the good in people.

For a slim figure, share your food with the hungry.

For beautiful hair, let a child run his fingers through it once a day.

For poise, walk with the knowledge you'll never walk alone.

We leave you a tradition with a future.

The tender loving care of human beings will never become obsolete.

People even more than things have to be restored, renewed, revived, reclaimed, and redeemed and redeemed and redeemed.

Never throw out anybody.

Remember, if you ever need a helping hand, you'll find one at the end of your arm.

As you grow older, you will discover that you have two hands: one for helping yourself, the other for helping others.

Your "good old days" are still ahead of you, may you have many of them.

-Sam Levenson edited by Audrey Hepburn

John,

You are a talented and exceptional young man. We are so very proud of you! Follow your dreams and pursue them wherever they may lead. It is in the journey that you will experience life.

Our love is with you always,

Mom, Dad, Catie, & Peter

The Road goes ever on and on Down from the door where it began.
Now far ahead the Road has gone,
And I must follow, if I can,
Pursuing it with eager feet,
Until it joins some larger way
Where many paths and errands meet.

And whither then? I cannot say.

-J. R. R. Tolkien

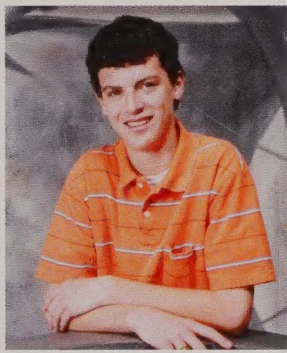

Freddie,

We are so proud of you and your accomplishments.
Keep making people smile.
Anything is possible.
Follow your dreams.
The best is yet to be!

To my Angel,

You have blessed my life to the fullest, and daily I thank God for giving me such a beautiful daughter. Though life has not been easy and the coldest of winds have blown through our lives, you have always gracefully conquered difficulties with a warm smile, courage, and strong faith. I am so very proud of you and all that you have accomplished. This isn't the end, baby, this is just the beginning. I so look forward to watching you make your dreams become reality. Always remember that no matter how old you are, you will always be my precious little Angel who loves to collect pine cones...

In The Blink Of An Eye

by Mercy Me

You put me here for a reason
You have a mission for me
You knew my name and You called it
Long before I learned to breathe

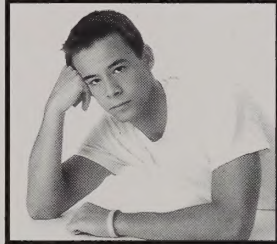

Sometimes I feel disappointed
By the way I spend my time
How can I further Your kingdom
When I'm so wrapped up in mine

And though I'm living a good life
Can my life be something great?
I have to answer the question
Before it's too late

If I give the very best of me
That becomes my legacy
So tell me what am I waiting for?
What am I waiting for?

In a Blink of an eye that is when I'll be closer to You than I've ever been
Time will fly, but until then
I'll embrace every moment I'm given
There's a reason I'm alive for a blink of an eye

Drew Davey

CONGRATULATIONS!

Brooke, I knew when you were born on May 28th, which was Memorial Day weekend, that you were making your first statement. Most of our family was out of town. They thought it would be okay to leave us because you weren't due until June 10th, but boy did you show them.

Ever since then you have made many statements by showing people that you are a leader. We are so proud of the choices you have made and the paths you have taken, I can't wait to see what the future brings for you. You have been such a fun daughter to grow with.

WE LOVE YOU!

MOM, SAM, STEPH, CORY, DADDY, AND COY

Carrie

Dear Kendra,

It has been our pleasure to watch you grow from a little rambunctious toddler into a compassionate, statuesque scholar. We admire your leadership and commitment to the community. You have superbly managed the art of being a highly accomplished student and busy social butterfly. Ken, through the years, you have brought us great joy. Now that you are stretching your wings and leaving the nest, dare we even try to imagine what future impact you will have on the world?

With all of our love, Daddy, Mommy, and Kerri

"Lose not courage, lose not faith, go forward."
-Marcus Garvey

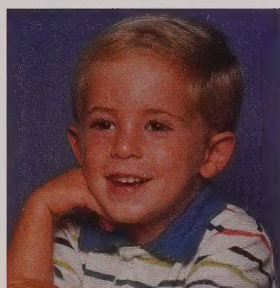

Steven,

From diapers to diplomas, our second baby boy is now leaving the nest. Pursue your dreams and never forget who you are.

May God always overlook and protect you.
"Shine Mr. Sunshine!"

We will love you forever,

Mom and Dad

Kathleen,

Ahead of you are all the tools you will need to sculpt the future of your life. Your life's creations have always been and always will be a source of inspiration for us. We are very proud of you.

Love,

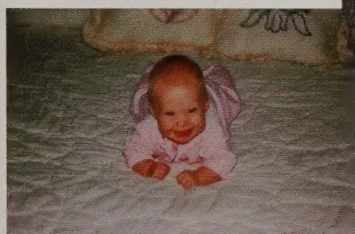

Mom, Dad, and Robert

Dear Courtney,

You are our dream come true! The strength and determination you demonstrate is remarkable. Your bright smile and cheerful laughter will be foremost in our thoughts. Follow your dreams, challenge yourself, and remain focused on what you believe. We wish you luck and success in what lies ahead. Congratulations on all of your accomplishments. You'll always be our little girl.

We love you,
Mom and Dad

Ashley~

I never thought I would meet a person younger than me who I admired so much until I met you. Your determination and passion continues to inspire me. To our newest Wolfpacker, I wish you all the luck in the world and I love you!

Ashley,

Carrie

You are so special to us ... keep reaching for those dreams and they will come true! You are amazing and we are so happy that you are a part of our family. Next year is going to be great at NC State - Go Wolfpack!

Love,
Mama and Papa Gray

Congratulations to you and the Class of '06 !!!

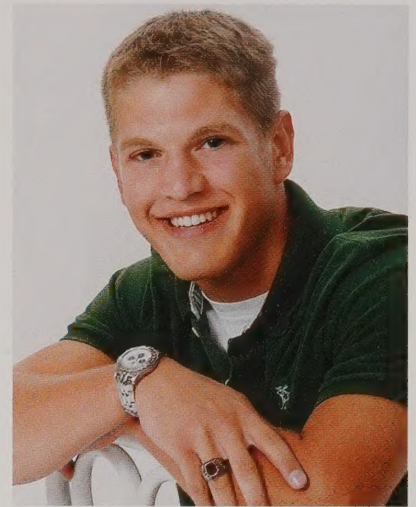

We're proud of you and love you very much.
Follow your dreams and anything is possible.

Love,
Dad, Mom, Amy, and "Muffin"

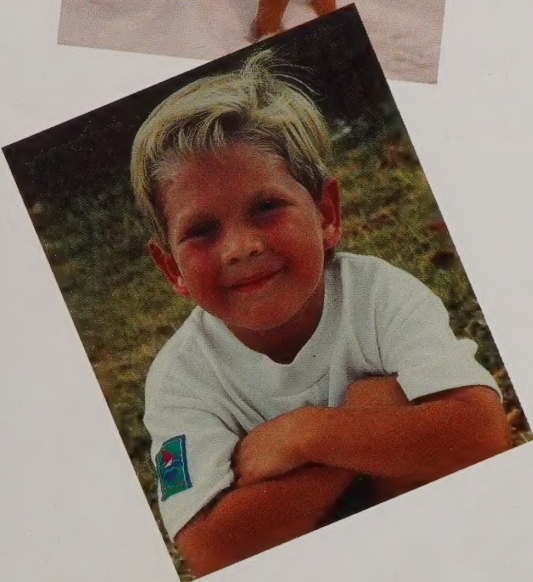

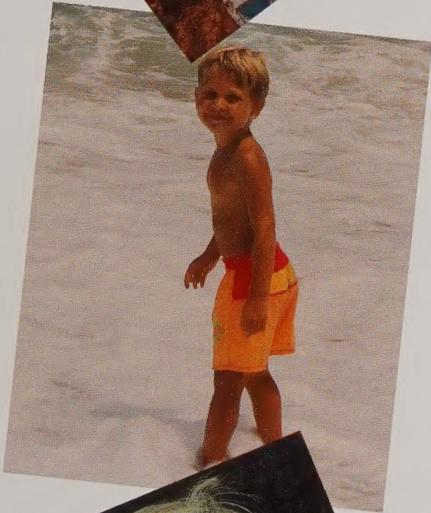

Congratulations CJ Popp Class of 2006

Dear CJ,

As your parents we have watched you grow up to be an incredible young man. From the day you were born we knew you were a special gift. As we reflect on your growth over the years... your strength of convictions and your passion for life, we realize that our wishes for you have come true. As you try out new things and take new paths while creating a life you want to lead, remember that we are always behind you in everything you do. We are proud and happy and full of love for you.

We love you more,
Mom, Dad, and Lindsay

Dear Marisa,

We are so proud of you! Follow your heart and know that you can do whatever you set out to accomplish. We are always here for you and we wish for you: Walls for the wind

And a roof for the rain

And drinks beside the fire-

Laughter to cheer you

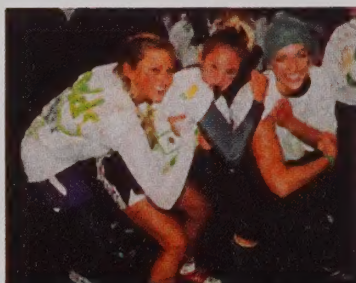

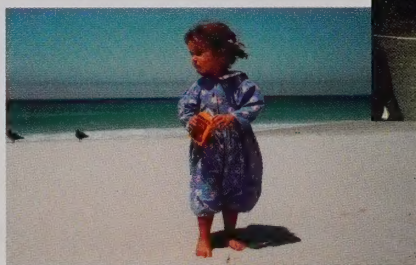

And those you love near you,

And all that your heart may desire!

~Irish Blessing

With all our heart,

Mom, Dad, & Mike

To My Daughter

Mallory

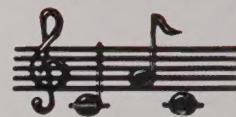

"I'll tell you one thing. I'm not coming here everyday."

The profound words of a rising Kindergartener... Wasn't it yesterday - or have 13 years really gone by? To you, days that seemed to never end - but for me a blur.

Thanks for the memories Mal - Soccer [the travel, the excitement & disappointment (State Cup), your coaches ("Sponge"; Are you going to stand there like a statue?) and even the neverending PT.] Show Choir [friendships, dressing in the same room (how inappropriate!), competitions, TN, NY and 2 New D Grand Championships!] Powder Puff Football, Homecoming Dances, Proms, Sleepovers and Friday nights at our house! Forever in my heart, but It ended way too soon...

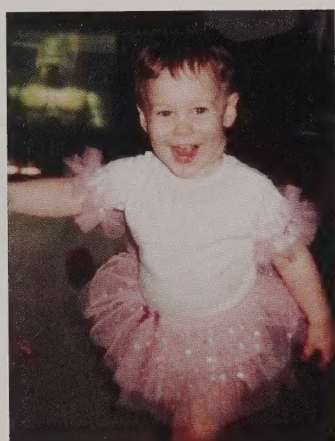

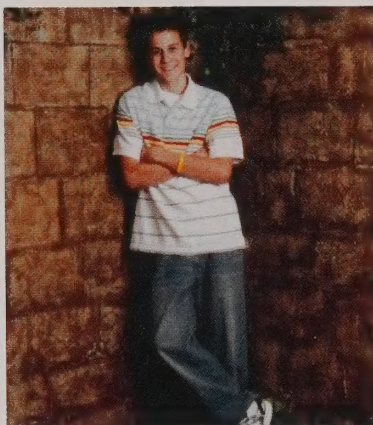

I Love You!

Mom

Rick,

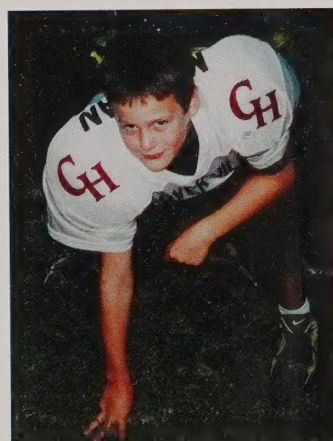

You have no idea how unbelievably proud we are of you! I'm going to miss you sooo much - whether it's borrowing gas money or picking up tons of clothes in your room - my heart will miss you. Remember to surround yourself with good people and the rest will come naturally. Enjoy life and make time to study in college. You will achieve anything you set your mind to!

Rick-Man
Cowabunga Dude!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Brandi, & Jessie

Danielle,

Be yourself, but be your best self. Dare to be different and follow your own star. You have grown so beautiful on the outside, but even more so on the inside - and we couldn't be prouder of you and all that you have accomplished.

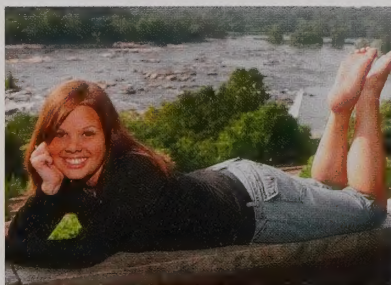

Good Luck!

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Tyler

Meaghan Norford

We are so proud of you and your accomplishments! Continue to dream big, listen to your heart and warm the world with your smile! Good luck at WVU!

*We love you,
Dad, Mom, and Brent*

To our son Giuliano,

Who has a creative, curious mind, and adventurous spirit. Whether standing beside princes, enjoying the company of chimps, or celebrating a soccer victory, you always stayed the same; a considerate, caring, sensitive, and responsible young man. You make us very proud to be your family. We celebrate another one of your accomplishments and are certain that you will have many more to come. Good luck at VA Tech.

We love you,
Dad, Mom, and Bruno
Our family and friends congratulate you.

Broder,

May you have enough happiness to make you sweet, enough trials to make you strong, enough sorrow to keep you human, and enough hope to make you happy.

I love you broder and I know you will achieve excellence at anything you pursue in life. You are the best broder in the world.

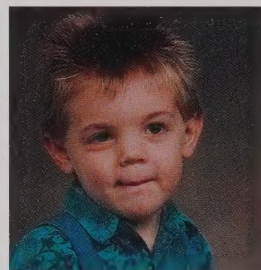

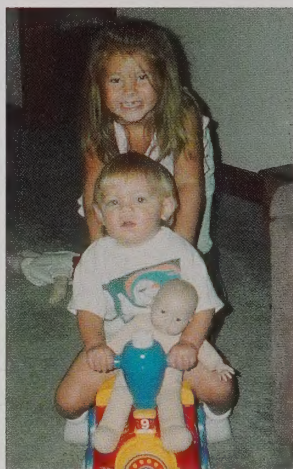

Love always,
Sist'r

Tyler,

You'll always be the baby boy, our love buckets and the wonderful man you have become.

We love you for your sense of humor, your loving heart, and your kind soul. We are proud of you and remember the finish line is just the beginning of an entire new race.

Love always,
Momma & Dad

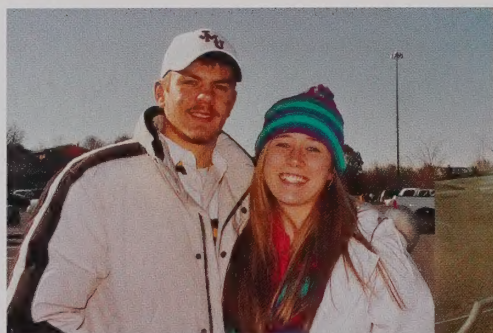

"What lies behind us and what lies before us are tiny matters compared to what lies within us."

-Ralph Waldo Emerson

You've come so far, but have so much farther to go. In the meantime, have fun, be happy, and keep no regrets. We are so proud of you!

Love always,

Daddy, Mama, Mandi,
& Ridge

May God bless you in your future endeavors!

*Love,
Dad, Mom, and Brittany
We love you!*

Congratulations Kate!

*We love you and we wish you the best of luck at

(Tinkerbell, Bud, and Lucy Sue, too!)

SEAN O'BRIEN

CONGRATULATIONS!

May the road rise to meet you.
May the wind be always at your back.
May the sun shine warm upon your face.
May the rains fall soft upon your fields.
And until we meet again,
May God hold you in the hollow of His hand.

Best Wishes!

Shannon,

There are so many things we want for you, so many wishes in our hearts as we watch you grow into your own life and leave your childhood behind . . . we wish you the satisfaction of seeing your goals achieved, the contentment born of simple things -- work well-done, friends well-loved, moments caught and cherished, and the love of your life.

Listen to your heart, trust your strengths, follow your joy, laugh often, be honest and challenge yourself everyday. Always remember how much you are loved. You are a beautiful and precious gift from God, and we are so grateful that he blessed us with you.

We will be here for you, always and forever.

We love you,

Mom, Dad
and Stephen

Brittany Gail Hooper

Brittany,

May you succeed wherever you go and whatever you choose to do.

Knowing there are many people who love, support, and believe in you. We have always been so proud of you and wish you happiness and success as you begin your college years. You are our pride and joy and we love you more than words can express.

Congratulations B !

Love,
Mom, Dad, Don, & Landon

To Max... the Consummate Dreamer!

A Dreamer goes where others do not dare and sees beyond the ordinary, moving with unlimited vision and purpose.

A Dreamer does not worry, will not hesitate along the way, is not afraid of a challenge and does not despair or become disillusioned.

From a Dreamer's eye, the view is breathtaking, the ideas are endless, and the possibilities go on and on.

A Dreamer is blessed with enough imagination to see what life might hold, enough initiative to go after it, and enough inspiration and insight to succeed.

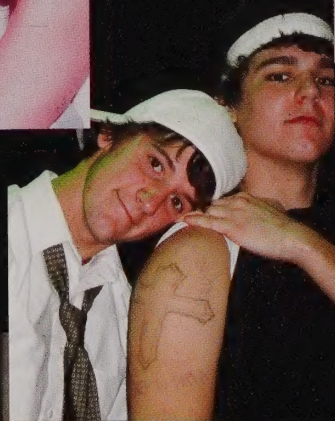

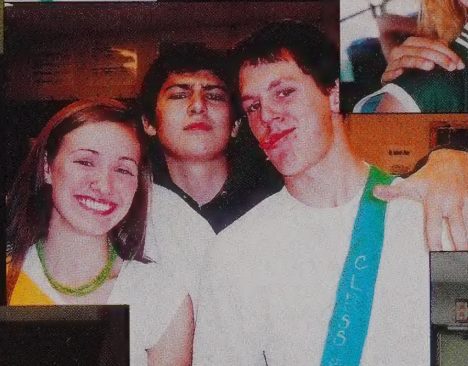

A Dreamer can see far beyond today, into a future bright with promise. A Dreamer's dreams never end, until all those dreams come true.

-B.J. Hall

"To accomplish great things, we must not only act, but also dream, not only plan, but also believe"- Anatole France

We love you and believe in you Max!

crossroads

"Sooner or later we all discover that the important moments in life are not the advertised ones, not the birthdays, the graduations, the weddings, not the great goals achieved. The real milestones are less prepossessing. They come to the door of memory unannounced, stray dogs that amble in, sniff around a bit and simply never leave. Our lives are measured by those."

~ Susan B. Anthony

The year comes to a close, and we go our separate ways. The changes that we have experienced during the past year will set us on a journey that will eventually lead us past the familiar halls that we have come to call home. We are adventurous, spontaneous, and intellectual. These qualities will set us apart from the crowd as we embark on the rest of our lives. As Cavaliers, we have learned and grasped the true meaning of family along with what it truly means to be an individual. With so many crossroads in our lives, we are often faced with difficult decisions, but high school has taught us to take on the challenges that stand in our way. As we sit, for the last time, with the class that helped us define who we are, we realize that a crossroad is merely a gateway to unlimited opportunity...

To our most beloved Jostens Representative, Mrs. Jan DeFalco, from the workshop in Williamsburg to homemade cookies on last deadline, you have made this book possible from beginning to end. Thank you for encouraging us when we felt like this book would never be finished and yelling at everyone else because of it. We couldn't have done it without you. You are our official yearbook mom.

To the entire yearbook staff: You have survived the Kendremily. Throughout the year you have learned how to "Perfectionize" each and every spread. Whether you are going to Cosby or staying at Clover Hill, remember that perfectionizing is a must. To the Seniors, no more deadlines, no more quotes, but never forget the wonderful times in yearbook. All of your hard work throughout the year has paid off, we hope you guys are happy with the result.

To Pengchoi, you two have monstrous footsteps to fill. We highly doubt that you two will have a more impressive Wall of Shame. Really though, thank you guys for always being there to clean up our messes (oops! we forgot a story) and for saving us with good gossip and good laughs when we were trapped in our hole. You two are wonderful and we know the book will be wonderful. Enjoy and treasure your new computers, we envy you. Remember never be afraid to yell at people and when you feel down, just rub a rose petal and dance like a crazy person.

Last, but most certainly not least, to our AMAZING sponsor, Mrs. Ritamarie Hensley, you have meant everything to us. Over the years you have come to be more than just a teacher, you've become a friend. There will never be enough words to describe how much you've meant to us. From your newly developed Starbucks addiction to your refusal to take your picture, you have kept us going when it seemed like the proofs would never end. This year has truly been a crossroad. With you going to Cosby and one of us off to N.C. State and the other to UVA, we're going through a million changes, but we'll always be Cavaliers. We promise that we'll come visit you at "that other school." Always remember that where Kendremily has been, there will always be a "heavenly force." We love you!

Love, Kendra and Emily
